C. C. BUTLER IS APPOINTED TO M'PHEETERS' JOB

Acting Governor Selects Manager of American Hotel for Police Commissioner Following His Request for Resignation of Present Official.

President of Board Says He Was Named by Major and Will Ignore Action of Painter and Resist Removal.

Declares Lieutenant-Governor Is Miffed Because He Refused to Promote Certain Policemen.

Lieutenant-Governor Painter, acting Governor in the absence of Gov. Major from the State, today announced the appointment of C. C. Butler, manager of the American Hotel and a Colonel on the Governor's staff, to succeed Sam B. McPheeters as a member of the St. Louis Board of Police Commissioners.

Painter Wednesday telegraphed to McPheeters a summary request for his resignation. This fact became known this morning. In an interview Painter said that if McPheeters did not resign by noon he would appoint a successor.

McPheeters refused to resign and said that he would pay no attention to Painter's demand and that Painter could keep on wiring requests for his resignation until doomsday and he would ignore them.

After Butler's appointment was announced in Jefferson City he told a Post-Dispatch reporter that he had received no word of the appointment. He said that until it came he would not say definitely whether he would accept.

The reason for Painter's request for his resignation, as McPheeters sees it, is that the Lieutenant-Governor is miffed because McPheeters refused his requests that certain policemen be promoted to higher rank and that certain others be transferred

Attorney-General Barker said, at Jefferson City, that the Governor had the power to instantly discharge a Police Commissioner without a hearing. This authority is given in section 9803, Revised Statutes of Missouri, 1909, which says that "any of said (Police) Commissioners may be removed by the Governor of the State of Missouri upon his being fully satisfied that the Commissioner is guilty of any official misconduct." The statutes give the Lieutenant-Governor the power to act as Governor when the Governor is absent from the State.

Governor Is Silent.

Gov. Major has been in Highland Park, Ill., on his vacation for several days. He told reporters over the telephone that he had no advance knowledge of the Lieutenant-Governor's action, and that he had no comment to make regarding it.

"I am on my vacation and will be out of the State probably until the end of the month," the Governor said. "Lieutenant-Governor Painter is the acting Governor, and I shall not interfere with any action he takes. I had no advance knowledge of this action, and it will not make any change in my plans."

The Governor said he had no knowledge of the reasons Painter had for making the changes. He said he was uncertain whether he would remain in Highland Park, that he might leave there any day, but that he saw no reason why he should return to Missouri.

There was much speculation among politicians as to whether Painter acted independently in demanding McPheeters' resignation or whether his action had the approval of Gov. Major.

While some believed Painter had taken advantage of his opportunity to gratify a personal grudge against McPheeters, others pointed out that Major might have political motives for sanctioning McPheeters' dismissal.

McPheeters Was for Gardner.

In the recent primary campaign, Major favored Atkinson as a gubernatorial candidate. He had his appointees in Kansas City 'go down the line" for Atkinson, but he was unable to do this in St. Louis. McPheeters favored Gardner, who was nominated with a big St. Louis plurality, whereas Atkinson polled a very small vote here.

It has been known to politicians that friends of McPheeters have been urging him to enter the race for the Democratic nomination for Mayor of St. Louis. It is also known that Horace S. Rumsey, Excise Commissioner and prime political favorite of Gov. Major, also will be a candidate.

Politicians concede that it would greatly further Rumsey's chances if McPheeters at the time of the primary election were a private citizen and not the controlling factor in the politically powerful Police Department.

McPheeters presided at this afternoon's session of the Police Board, which began at 2 o'clock, notwithstanding Lieutenant-Governor Painter's action in naming his successor. President McPheeters said before going into the board room that he had no statement to make about the

WILL TRY TO CIVILIZE THE MOROS THROUGH MEDICAL RELIEF

Philippine Government and Rockefeller Foundation Will Keep Hospital Ship in Archipelago.

NEW YORK, Aug. 18.—In an attempt to civilize the Moros through medical relief, the Philippine Government, co-operating with the International Health Board of the Rockefeller Foundation, will send a hospital ship to the Sulu Archipelago, which has approximately 200,000 savages. The medical service will be maintained for five years.

For more than 200 years the Moros, who were the famous Malay pirates that devastated the northern Philippine Islands, have resisted all attempts to pacify them by military force.

MOST POWERFUL SEARCHLIGHT

Huge Arc Lamp to Have 1,280,000,000 Candle Power.

NEW YORK, Aug. 18.—The world's most powerful searchlight is being constructed in Brooklyn. Atop the new Sperry Gyroscope Co.'s building on Flatbush avenue extension, near the approach to the Manhattan Bridge, a gang of skilled workmen is engaged in putting the huge arc light together. When complete it will have 1,280,000,000 candle power. It is as tall as the ordinary man.

Elmer A. Sperry is the inventor of the light. He said today it is being constructed solely for experimental purposes. It will be 60 per cent stronger than the searchlight tried out at the Brooklyn navy yard last May, which could be seen for 35 miles.

PRESIDENT VETOES ARMY BILL BECAUSE OF 'RETIRED' CLAUSE

It Exempts Old Officers From Discipline—New Measure Is Introduced in House.

MAY REOPEN BIG FIGHT

Retired Officer Said to Desire to Make Public Attack on Army.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 18.—President Wilson today vetoed the army appropriation bill because of exemptions from discipline of retired officers forced into it by the House conferees led by Representative Hay over the opposition of the War Department. A new bill will be necessary and may delay adjournment of Congress.

Representative Hay later reintroduced the bill, minus not only the section to which the President objected, but with the whole revision of the articles of war eliminated. This threatened to complicate the situation.

Representative Hay announced that he would seek to repass the bill in the House under a special rule next Tuesday.

May Reopen Whole Fight.

"The articles of war will not be permitted to get through in this bill again," he declared emphatically after a conference with several members of the military committee.

The danger of complication and delay lies in the fact that chairman Chamberlain of the Senate Military Committee said that if the House passed the bill without revision of the articles of war, the Senate probably would reinsert them as they were passed by the Senate. The President and War Department were satisifed with that provision.

"The veto," said Senator Chamberlain, "re-opens the whole bill and there may be some Senators who will want to review their fight for amendments stricken out in conference."

Text of the Veto.

President Wilson's veto message follows:

"To the House of Representatives:

"I have carefully considered the bill entitled, 'An Act Making Appropriations for the Support of the Army for the Fiscal Year Ending June 30,1917,' and now take the liberty of returning it with my objections to its approval.

"The bill constitutes an essential part of the legislation providing for the military establishement of the country and wisely and generously provides for the reorganization of the agencies of our national defense, and it is with genuine reluctance that I delay its becoming law by suggesting the elimination of one of the porvisions which has been embodied in the very necessary and important revision of the articles of war which has been added to it.

"The existing articles of war are undoubtely archaic. They have not undergone comprehensive revision for more than 100 years. They do not always furnish the means of meeting promptly and directly the needs of discipline under modern conditions, and many contingencies now frequently arise in the Government of the military forces which were not contemplated when the present code was formulated. The relations of the Government of the United States have greatly broadened within the hundred years. We now have insular possessions and national interests far away from our continental shores. Both the practice of arms and the theory of discipline have undergone many modern changes and a manifest need for such a revision of these articles as is here presented has long existed. I, therefore, the more keenly regret to find in the proposed revision of the articles of war a provision to which I cannot give my approval.

"The original act establishing the retired list of the army referred to the personnel therein included as only partially retired, and provided that a retired officer should be entitled to wear

STATE ARBITRATOR CALLS CONFERENCE ON MILK STRIKE

Awaits Dairymen and Strikers at Laclede Hotel—Employers Refuse to Attend.

MEDIATOR LEAVES CITY

Federal Agent Says He Can Do Nothing Now, but Will Return.

James A. Smyth, mediation agent of the United States Department of Labor, who endeavored for a week to settle the strike of milk wagon drivers, departed for Washington at noon today, leaving arbitration measures in the hands of the State Board of Arbitration. C. B. Dysart, secretary of the State Board, has called a meeting.

Dysart waited this afternoon at the Laclede Hotel for dairymen and strikers to attend the conference to which he had summoned them. He said he might use the board's full powers under the law to compel attendance of the dairymen, who had notified him, through Attorney Jesse A. McDonald, that they would not come. The strikers had promised to send representatives.

Smyth said before leaving that the milk strike would remain on his docket until it is settled, and that he would probably return within a week and would come sooner if there appeared to be a prospect of settlement. He said the situation was "far from hopeless," but he saw nothing more to do at this time, following the failure of his intended "get-together conference" at the Warwick Hotel yesterday. At this "conference," nine dairymen gathered at one end of the hotel lobby, and nine representatives of the strikers at the other end, and exchanged diplomatic notes, with no practical result.

Few Wagons Go Out.

Dairymen made little attempt to send out one-horse delivery wagons on routes this morning. The St. Louis Dairy Co. sent out two such wagons shortly after noon, although little demand for milk usually exists at that time of day. The reason for the delay, it was said at the company's King's highway office, was that drivers were in Police Court and at the Prosecuting Attorney's office, testifying against strikers who attacked them yesterday and the day before.

Following the Warwick Hotel gathering, D. J. Murphy, seventh vice president of the International Teamsters' Union, announced that unless the dairymen yielded within a few days a general strike of 10,000 teamsters would be called, tying up food deliveries and hampering business generally. Murphy was present as one of the strikers' representatives, and the dairymen refused to accept him as a conferee, while the strikers refused to change the personnel of their delegation. This hitch defeated Smyth's attempt to open negotiations.

Murphy said the strike would come suddenly, if it came, and that it might begin with a refusal of ice wagon drivers to deliver ice to dairies involved in the strike. Such a move was talked of a week ago.

Officials of the East St. Louis Milk Wagon Drivers' Union said no vote had been taken on the question of a strike there, and that there could be no strike without such a vote.

F. T. Vollmer, a grocer at 6202 Columbia avenue, was driving a truck load of milk from the Pevely establishment at Grand and Chouteau avenues when several men threw stones at the truck. A policeman arrested Edward Josse of 3517 Miami street, said to be a striker, and Edward Mueller of 3626 Delmar boulevard, an employe of the company, who was accused of attacking a striker. An official of the dairy company furnished bond for Mueller.

William Sicking of 2522 Arlington avenue, a striker using an automobile, placed the machine in such a position as to obstruct a truck at the St. Louis Dairy Co. distributing station on Twenty-first street and was arrested because the machine was within five feet of a fire plug. William Groteteers of 2959 Franklin avenue was arrested for defacing the sidewalk at the same place, when he chalked "Unfair" on the walk.

Louis Schmides of 3645 Laclede avenue, a striker, was arrested on complaint of Julius Scheske of 3649 Garfield avenue, route boss for the St. Louis Dairy Co. He says Schmides attacked him when he was delivering milk at 5038 Waterman avenue.

Warrants Issued for Three Striking Milkmen.

Warrants were issued by Assistant Prosecuting Attorney Wilson today against Ernest Carr, 6029 Horton place; George Barwig, 4849 St. Louis avenue, and Ferd Heise, 6406 Wells avenue, striking milk wagon drivers, charging them with assault and battery on R. M. Thompson and John W. Robbe, employed by the St. Louis Dairy Co., 2008 Pine street.

Application for the warrants was made by John T. Cabanne, vice president of the St. Louis Dairy Co. He said he was following in an automobile the milk wagons driven by Thompson and Robbe and saw Carr, Barwig and Heise knock them down and kick them at King's highway and Waterman avenue yesterday. Robbe was unconscious for an hour, he said.

Capt. Fryatt, the commander of the steamer Brussels, was executed by order of a German courtmartial for having defended his ship against attacks by a German submarine. He was presented with a watch by Parliament for ramming and sinking a German submarine. He was captured later when his ship was sunk after he had resisted the demand to surrender.

The portrait was taken at Rotterdam recently, during one of Capt. Fryatt's visits to Holland, where he was a well known and popular figure in merchant marine circles.

ISLAND RESIDENTS REMOVED FROM PATH OF GULF STORM

Coast Guards Begin Work Early in Day Twenty-Two Miles From Brownsville, Tex., as Precaution.

BROWNSVILLE, Tex., Aug. 18.—Summer residents on Padre Island Beach, opposite Point Isabel, 22 miles northeast of here, were removed to the mainland early today by a crew of the United States coast guard station at Brazos Island on receipt of news of the tropical storm approaching the gulf from the West Indies.

All fishing vessels also were drawn into Isabel Harbor. Barometers here registered 29.60 at 10 a. m. a fall of 10 points since 7 a. m. and was still falling.

GALVESTON, Tex., Aug. 18.—Indications this morning are that the tropical storm which came into the Gulf of Mexico through the Yucatan Channel Wednesday night will go inland near the mouth of the Rio Grande or on the lower Texas coast. Reports from the Gulf Coast Weather Bureau stations show Brownsville with the lowest barometer on the coast, 29.70, with the wind blowing 20 miles an hour from the north.

CONGRESS ASKED TO APPROVE $130,000,000 BOND ISSUE

Finance Committee Recommends Move to Meet Expenditures Due to Mexican Situation.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 18.—A recommendation of the majority members of the Senate Finance Committee for a $130,000,000 bond issue to meet extraordinary government expenditures due to the Mexican situation was made to Congress last night. This amount, it is explained, will meet the expenditures only until the end of the calendar year, and should border conditions continue as at present after Dec. 31, next, a further appropriation of $86,000,000 will be required.

The committee recommendation, which is concurred in by the Treasury Department, was laid before the Senate in its report on the $205,000,000 revenue bills. It was accompanied by a Treasury Department statement which estimated disbursements for the fiscal year 1917 at $1,126,243,000 and receipts at $762,000,000.

2 NEGRO BROTHERS ARE HANGED 25 MINUTES APART

About 50 Persons Witness Execution of Policemen's Slayers in St. Charles.

Harry and Andrew Black, negro brothers, 29 and 27 years old, who formerly lived in St. Louis, at 2901 Morgan street, were hanged in the county jail at St. Charles this morning for the murder of Policemen David Lamb and John Blair, at St. Charles, Dec. 6, 1913. Harry was hanged at 5:26 o'clock and was pronounced dead 14 minutes after the trap was sprung. The trap was sprung for Andrew at 5:51 and he died 13 minute later. It was the first double hanging in St. Charles County. About 50 persons, mostly officials of St. Louis and St. Charles Counties, attended the executions.

Sheriff Philip Rupp of St. Charles County, sprung the trap in both executions. Policeman Robert Lamb, a brother of one of the murdered officers, assisted in the execution of Andrew.

The Black brothers murdered Policemen David Lamb and John Blair on the Wabash tracks at Fourth street in St. Charles while the officers were engaged in a pistol fight with Tom Allen, a third negro. Allen was killed by Lamb, who was in turn shot and mortally wounded by Harry Black. Blair was also killed, presumably by Andrew Black, who also took part in the shooting.

The Black brothers, who then lived in St. Louis, explained their presence in St. Charles by saying they had gone there to gamble and were preparing to return to St. Louis when the shooting occurred.

RAILROAD PRESIDENTS REJECT WILSON'S PLAN, EMPLOYES VOTE FOR IT

Executive Will Take "No" For an Answer; Chiefs Will Return Tomorrow.

MANAGERS WILL ALSO BE AT THE CONFERENCE

Heads of 31 Lines Tell the President That an Eight-Hour Day Is Impracticable and That They Will Stand by Decision of Their Managers.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 18.—Thirty-one railroad presidents today told President Wilson they stood by the decision of their managers' committee that an eight-hour day was impracticable. President Wilson refused to take "no" for an answer to his proposal that they accept the eight-hour day in an effort to avert the threatened nation-wide railroad strike and asked them to return to the White House tomorrow with their managers for another conference.

Just after the railroad presidents left the White House it became known that the employes had voted to accept President Wilson's proposition and that some of the leaders had gone to the White House to tell him so.

Mr. Wilson appealed to the presidents to reverse the stand of their managers' committee and accept the proposal to concede the eight-hour day, regular time for overtime and have a commission appointed by Congress to investigate the collateral issues.

It was plain that the railroad presidents were prepared to refuse the proposition or ask for time to consider it. There were some indications, however, that President Wilson might move them and failing in that call in the financial powers which control the roads.

When the White House conference began brotherhood leaders said the men still were balloting. It was expected that they would accept President Wilson's plan.

Programme Was Arranged.

Hale Holden, president of the Burlington, acted as spokesman for the presidents. It was agreed in advance that the railroad officials would listen to President Wilson's presentation of his plan. Holden would ask questions in order to make the situation clear, and the railroad presidents would return to their hotel to hold a meeting and decide on their action. It was tentatively arranged that when the answer was sent to President Wilson it would be given to the public.

Shortly after 9 o'clock this morning the men assembled in executive session to vote on the plan.

The railroad presidents want arbitration under the Newlands act, with two arbitrators for the roads, two for the men and two for the public. The disposition of many of them was said today to be to insist upon action of that character and not to yield to President Wilson's plan for an eight-hour day unless it comes from an arbitration board.

Some of the presidents are said to feel that the public will support their offer to arbitrate everything in dispute. Some others, however, are of the opinion that if President Wilson refuses to press the men for arbitration, it will be difficult for the railroad presidents to continue opposition to his plan.

After the employes' meeting had been in session for an hour, one of the leaders came out and said sentiment for the President's proposal was by no means unanimous, but no organized opposition to the plan had appeared. Most of them thought the proposition good in the main, but a number objected to it.

During the morning President Wilson prepared a statement reviewing the negotiations and explaining why he chose the plan of settlement based on the eight-hour day. The statement probably will be given out later.

W. L. Chambers of the Federal mediators, went to the men's meeting at the request of brotherhood officials to explain some of the features of the situation. He went into executive session with the heads of the four brotherhoods on the subject of overtime.

In the men's meeting the leading objection to President Wilson's proposal was that if it were accepted without extra pay for overtime the men demanded the railroads would contend that the sole purpose of the men was to obtain more money and not to get the eight-hour day.

Shortly after noon a vote on the President's proposal was begun in the employes' meeting. It was expected more than an hour would be required to take the vote and count it.

Had Arbitration Plan.

Before proposing his plan, the President had sought vainly for two days to have both sides accept some form of arbitration. He decided finally that this was absolutely impossible and then determined on the proposal laid before the employes.

The conference between the President and the general committee of employes yesterday lasted about an hour. After the members of the committee had assembled in the east room they were introduced to the President by A. B. Garretson, their spokesman. In a short speech, Garretson pointed out that the President's position in summoning representatives of a large number of workingmen to the White House without others present for a discussion of a labor problem stood unparalleled.

The employes remained undemonstrative during the remarks of Garretson and the President. At the conclusion of the meeting they formed in line and shook hands with Mr. Wilson.

In his talk to the men the President explained his feeling that a strike must be avoided at any cost because of the disastrous effect on the country. He then said that after reviewing the situation thoroughly with the small committees representing the employers and the employes, he had drawn up a plan which he thought was fair to both sides and which he hoped would be accepted by both.

The President declared he believed in the principle of the eight-hour day and that he thought the greater part of the people of the United States held a similar view. He also sought to impress on the men that he knew what it meant to work for a living. He said he had learned early in life the trials of "making both ends meet."

Favors a Commission.

Regarding the collateral issues the President admitted that he was at a loss to say how they should be settled. If the question of overtime and other problems were left to him, he said, he would have to ask for a commission to help him decide what would be fair. He added that in his belief there were enough honest men in the United States to decide these questions fairly, to both sides, and that they would do so if called upon.

At the conclusion of the President's talk the four brotherhood heads questioned him in order to bring out all the points for the benefit of the members of the general committee who have not been at the previous White House conferences.

If the men desired, the President said just before they left, they could remain in the room in which they had assembled and decide whether they would approve or reject his proposition. He was willing, he said, to withdraw and let them come to a decision. Garretson thanked the President, but explained that he believed it would be best for the men to go to their hall for a meeting.

Made President Wince.

When they departed the men were invited to shake hands with the President. When about half of them had done so, W. S. Carter, head of the enginemen, noticed Mr. Wilson wincing occasionally as a husky employe grasped his hand tightly.

"Just touch the President's hand, men," Carter said. "He is unaccus-

BERLIN, via London, Aug. 18.—The Teutonic allies have taken the offensive on the Balkan front and captured the Greek town of Florina from Servian troops, the War Office announced today.

Florina is about fifteen miles south east of Monastir and has a population of probably 20,000.

PARIS, Aug. 18.—Heavy attacks were made by the French last night on the Verdun front. After violent fighting at Fleury, east of the Meuse, they expelled the Germans from part of the town which had been captured, says the official statement of today.

The French also made considerable progress in the region of Thiaumont, in the Verdun sector. Fifty Germans were captured there.

Several German counter-attacks on the Somme front southeast of Maurepas were repulsed.

LONDON, Aug. 18.—An official statement issued last night said:

'On our right there was considerable artillery activity all day. Last night and early this morning the enemy delivered a series of determined counter attacks on our trenches northwest of Pozieres on a broad front with considerable forces. Six times his infantry advanced to the attack, but ran back suffering very heavy losses. Our guns and machine guns did great execution. In no case did he succeed in entering our lines.

"Northwest of Bazentin we captured about 100 yards of trenches. A counter attack made by the enemy today from Martinpuich was repulsed and some prisoners were captured by us. A German aeroplane was brought down behind our lines near Pozieres."

McPheeters to Ignore Demand That He Resign

appointment but that he might have something to say later.

Will Do As Governor Desires.

President McPheeters said to a Post-Dispatch reporter: "I was appointed by Gov. Major for a term ending June 1, 1917. I have repeatedly asked him if my administration has been satisfactory and he has always said it was eminently so. I have told him that any time he wished to make a change he had only to indicate his desire and I would relieve him of all embarrassment.

"My administration of the Police Department is open to all. I do not intend to resign and do not intend to surrender my office to anyone, unless requested to do so by Gov. Major."

McPheeters said the telegram asking for his resignation was transmitted to him by telephone Wednesday afternoon by Police Commissioner Maffitt while he was at the Bellerive Country Club. The text follows:

"I would be glad to receive your resignation as Police Commissioner of the City of St. Louis by wire this afternoon.

Acting Governor Painter.

McPheeters said the demand for his resignation by Painter has no real political significance and that the Lieutenant-Governor has not been friendly to him because he has denied him several favors requested. The favors sought, McPheeters said, were promotions of certain patrolmen to higher rank.

"I am frank to say that Painter and I are not friendly," said McPheeters, "but I'll stay on the job and you can't make that too strong. I won't go into the legal phases of the case, but I'll not give up without a fight and if Painter has any reasons for demanding my resignation he will have to make them public."

Asked what he thought of the attitude of Gov. Major in the matter of Painter's actions, McPheeters replied that he does not believe the Governor knew anything about what Painter intended doing when he left the capitol.

Painter also demanded the resignations of Dr. U. G. Crandell and Joseph I. McDonald, Police Commissioners of St. Joseph. In speeches and several statements made just before the recent primary election, at which Painter was a candidate for the Democratic nomination for Governor, he said the Police Commissioners of St. Louis, St. Joseph and Kansas City had been instructed to give orders to the men in the Police Departments to work for Atkinson, one of his opponents.

Somme Attack May Fail Yet Help Allies' Cause

Only One Phase of Big Offensive

By Frank H. Simonds.

THE Battle of the Somme opened on the first day of July; tomorrow, then, will mark the end of the seventh week. We have now the assurance of American correspondents, who have just visited the German lines, that the attack has failed. How far is this an accurate statement, both as to what has happened and as a reasonably credible forecast of the future?

The best answer is Verdun. The attack there began on Feb. 21. It was asserted by the correspondent who visited the Verdun sector on April 6 that the French had stopped the German attack permanently, in so far as the attack was a piercing attack. The French officers, who he saw both in the Verdun sector and in Paris were agreed in the first week of April that the danger of a German thrust through the French lines had failed. Their words were made good by the very sharp check which came to the Germans in their great effort of April 9.

We may say that on April 9, which was 48 days after the opening of the German attack upon Verdun, its failure as a piercing operation was established. In a word, in seven weeks after they had been menaced by a deadly thrust, the French restored what they have since officially described as "a delicate situation." What they had been able to do, actually, was to get the guns and munitions as well as the men needed to hold new lines; they had constructed the new lines and henceforth remained to the Germans the chance to take trenches, to blast their way foot by foot and yard by yard forward, at the cost of large casualties and with the only possible profit the exhaustion of French reserves and the depression of French confidence and courage.

Tables Have Turned.

In a very odd way the tables have now turned. If you should take the trouble to go back to the official statements of last April, May and June, you would find that the Germans were then saying exactly what the French and British are now saying and the French were then asserting as to their lines in the Verdun sector what the Germans are proclaiming as to their front along the Somme.

We know now that the French were right and the Germans were wrong. We know that the Germans did not, after their April reverse, have any chance to get through, and they have failed and practically abandoned their attempt. We do not know whether the French were correct when they said that the Germans' loss was colossal, but we do know that the Germans are now declaring that the British and French loss in the similar operation at the Somme is colossal, and we read, particularly in the French reports, that owing to French artillery preparation, French losses were slight, which is just what the Germans were telling us about Verdun a few months ago.

We are bound to conclude, so far as it is wise or fair to reason by analogy, that the German statement that the allied thrust in the Somme sector has failed, as the Germans got through the Russian lines at the Dunajec in the spring of 1915, and as the Russians have got through the Austrian lines this summer. We are bound to believe that whatever of progress the British and French now make in taking trenches, the Germans have had the time to get new lines down, to mass new batteries of artillery and can reasonably hope to repeat the French success at Verdun in holding their lines.

Now all this has thrown the allies back upon a second line of argument. This again is familiar. When they failed to get through to Verdun by their February thrust, by their March effort and by the culminating attack of April 9, the Germans told the world that the operation had become one of siege, with slow, methodical artillery preparation and small but steady gain. This they did keep up from April to July, when the Somme operation compelled them to abandon the offensive at the Meuse. Then the Germans asserted they were using up the last French reserve and behind these France was wearying of the war and longing for peace. About the same arguments now come from London and from Paris.

So far then, the two great efforts stand on all fours. The German attack upon Verdun, which failed, followed exactly the same course that has subsequently been followed by the Somme attack, its phases were almost identical and there is no reason to doubt that the actual result, so far as the Somme sector is concerned, is likely to be the same. It remains possible that the British will get Bapaume and the French Peronne just as everyone recognized that the Germans might ultimately get the remaining French forts on the east bank of the Meuse above the town of Verdun, but it has become excessively improbable that the allies will get to St. Quentin or Cambrai, as it was similarly unlikely, after April 9, that the Germans would get to Bar-le-Duc.

Part of Big Plan.

But having now pointed out the similarities, it is essential to emphasize the differences between the Verdun and Somme operations. The Verdun operation was a single and comprehensive effort, it was the one thing Germany was undertaking to do, elsewhere she simply tried to hold on. She gambled that she could hold her eastern lines until she had won her victory at Verdun. She lost the throw and Austria suffered one of the great disasters of the war in consequence. Actually the 358,000 prisoners the Russians report that they have taken are the price of Verdun. And Verdun did not fall.

Now, the allies are not simply attacking on the Somme; this is not merely a local and desperate attack, designed to turn the Germans out of France. It is only incidentaly this. It is more important as a campaign to hold German reserves in France and permit Russia to continue her great attack. The success or failure of the Somme operation may be absolute in its own area, but it is actually relative in the area of the war. All the bloody battles of Grant, from the wilderness to Cold Harbor and Petersburg, were defeats on the battlefield, because in all of them he failed to accomplish his purpose in the actual field in which he was operating; they were failures on the battlefield and they did not, in 1864, get him Richmond. But they are to be measured, and now they are measured, by their effect upon the whole war, and we see that they did exhaust Confederate numbers, prevent the reinforcement of the armies before Thomas and Sherman and ultimately make possible these victories in the other fields, which actualy settled the issue of the Civil War before Appomatox.

All this the Somme offensive may not do; no considerable part of the mission of the army of the Potomac may be performed by the armies of Foch and Haig. We cannot judge of this as yet, nor for many months. But we can see where the parallel is good, where it is impressive. We can see that if the Russians get Lemberg and reach the San or the Hungarian plain, if the Italians get Trieste or Laibach, if the army of Sarrail returns to the Danube, the total cause of the allies will have profited immeasurably, the contribution of the French and British in the West will have been tremendous, even if they do not gain another mile or another wrecked village.

The Germans seem to be speaking with truthfulness and we are bound to listen to what they say, as to the check to allied purpose in the west, so far as this purpose was to pierce their lines. We are bound to accept it because it is nothing more or less than what we all said about Verdun, accepting the French statements and the words of our own correspondents. But we must all recognize the fundamental distinction between the Verdun and the Somme operations, which lies in the fact that Verdun was an end in itself of the single purpose on which all German effort was concentrated, while the Somme is one phase of a grandiose and continent-wide attack.

"Battle of Europe" Now.

Whether this continent-wide attack is to succeed or fail is a matter that we cannot even guess about, because we lack convincing evidence. It has so far succeeded tremendously, measured by prisoners captured, guns and munitions and forts taken; 400,000 prisoners alone in the 10 weeks of offensive is a staggering blow, joined to a loss of men by wounds which cannot be less and may be more. More than three-quarters of a million Germans and Austrians, mostly Austrians, have gone out of the battle line since June 1. The allied losses are apportioned among four nations, not two, and no considerable number of allied prisoners have been claimed by the central Powers.

Only by keeping the whole field in mind now shall we be able to estimate rightly the actual situation and escape attaching too much importance to any one department. It is the battle of Europe, not the battle of the Somme, that is to be considered.

If Too Fat Get More Fresh Air

BE MODERATE IN YOUR DIET AND REDUCE YOUR WEIGHT. TAKE OIL OF KOREIN.

Lack of fresh air, it is said, weakens the oxygen-carrying power of the blood, the liver becomes sluggish, fat accumulates and the action of many of the vital organs are hindered thereby. The heart action becomes weak, work is an effort and the beauty of the figure is destroyed.

Fat put on by indoor life is unhealthy, and if nature is not assisted in throwing it off, a serious case of obesity may result.

When you feel that you are getting too stout, take the matter in hand at once. Don't wait until your figure has become a joke and your health ruined through carrying around a burden of unsightly and unhealthy fat.

Spend as much time as you possibly can in the open air, breathe deeply, and get from Wolff-Wilson Drug Co. or any druggist a box of oil of korein capsules; take one after each meal and one before retiring at night.

Weigh yourself every few days and keep up the treatment until you are down to normal. Oil of korein is absolutely harmless, is pleasant to take, helps the digestion, and even a few days' treatment has been reported to show a noticeable reduction in weight.—ADV.

HUGHES WILL TRY TO UNITE FACTIONS IN CALIFORNIA

Republican Nominee Met at State Line—Two Days in San Francisco.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 18.—Charles E. Hughes was welcomed in California today by a committee of 30 and escorted to San Francisco, where he will remain for two days.

Interest centers in the big public meeting tonight, over which W. F. Crocker, Republican National Committeeman, is to preside. A conflict between Republican and Progressive leaders exists and Mr. Hughes is to try to unite the two factions. Gov. Hiram W. Johnson, as both a Progressive and a Republican candidate for United States Senator, will not be present.

Chester H. Rowell, former Progressive leader, told the nominee at Medford yesterday that Johnson had not been invited to the meeting tonight and his presence was "highly undesirable."

The meeting arranged for Los Angeles Monday night, Rowell told the nominee, similarly had been left entirely in the hands of regular Republicans and that the Progressive element there was "resentful" because of this arrangement.

A written protest against the plan to entertain and banquet Hughes here Saturday at the Commercial Club was made by the striking San Francisco culinary workers' union.

President Vetoes Army Bill Because of 'Retired' Clause

the uniform of his grade, should be borne on the Army Register and should be subject to the rules and articles of war, and to trial by general courtmartial for any breach of these articles. By the act of July 24, 1876, officers of the army on the retired list were specifically declared to constitute a part of the regular army, a provision which is found repeated in subsequent acts affecting the organization of the army, and other statutes enacted during this period made retired officers of the army available for certain classes of active duty, in time of peace with their consent, and in time of war without their consent.

Authority Is Increased.

"By the recently enacted national defense act, the authority of the President over retired officers has been further extended so as to make them subject to his call in time of war for any kind of duty without any restriction whatever. Courts and Attorneys-General have in a long line of decisions held that officers of the army on the retired list hold public office.

"It thus appears that both the legislative and judicial branches have drawn a sharp distinction in status between retired officers, who are regarded and governed at all times as an effective reserve of skilled and experienced officers and a potential source of military strength, and mere pensioners from whom no further military service is expected.

"Officers on the retired list of the army are officers of the army, members of the military establishment distinguished by their long service, and as such, examples of discipline to the officers and men in the active army. Moreover, they wear the uniform of the army, their education and service hold them out as persons especially qualified in military matters to represent the spirit of the military establishment, and they are subject to active duty in time of national emergency by the mere order of the Commander in Chief.

"They are, therefore, members of the army, officers of the United States, exemplars of discipline and have in their keeping the good name and the good spirit of the entire military establishment before the world. Occupying such a relation, their subjection to the rules and articles of war and to trial by general courtmartials have always been regarded as necessary in order that the retired might not become a source of tendencies which would weaken the discipline of the active land forces and impair that control over those forces which the Constitution vests in the President.

"The purpose of the articles of war in times of peace is to bring about a uniformity in the application of military discipline which will make the entire organization coherent and effective and to engender a spirit of co-operation and proper subordination to authority which will in time of war instantly make the entire army a unit in its purpose of self-sacrifice and devotion to duty in the national defense. These purposes cannot be accomplished if the retired officers, still a part of the military establishment, still relied upon to perform important duties, are excluded, upon retirement, from the wholesome and unifying effect of this subjection to a common discipline. I am persuaded that officers upon the retired list would themselves regard it as an invidious and unpalatable discrimination which in effect excluded them from full membership in the profession to which they have devoted their lives and of which, by the laws of their country they are still members. So long as Congress sees fit to make the retired personnel a part of the army of the United States, the constitutionality of the proposed exemption of such personnel from all liability under the articles of war is a matter of serious doubt, leaving the President, as it does, without any means sanctioned by statute of exercising over the personnel thus exempted the power of command vested in him by the constitution.

"Convinced as I am of the unwisdom of this provision and of its baneful effect upon the discipline of the army, doubting as I do the power of Congress wholly to exempt retired officers from the control of the President while declaring them to be a part of the regular army of the United States, I am constrained to return this bill without my approval."

There have been broad intimations that the revision which proposed to remove retired officers from the jurisdiction of courtsmartial was in the interest of a certain retired officer who was waiting for a time when he would be immune from discipline to make a public attack on the army.

The officer, whose name was mentioned in connection with the report, was while in service very active in legislative affairs, was very close to Congressmen framing army bills and until his retirement was reckoned with as a power in legislation affecting the army.

The President's veto of the bill is one of the developments of years of contest between the army and Chairman Hay. The downfall of the continental army scheme and substitution of the national guard reorganization against the recommendation of the army officers is attributed to him. Only the force of President Wilson's influence put the regular army increase in the new re-organization bill through the House in the face of the Hay opposition.

Recently President Wilson appointed Hay to a judgeship on the Court of Claims, and now is serving his last term in Congress.

The War Department contends that many features of the army bill were written into it in the conference and never were debated in House or Senate.

VILLAGES IN WASTE FOR MANY MILES BEHIND THE SOMME-ANCRE LINE

Places in the Most Beautiful Part of France Can Only Be Compared to San Francisco After the Earthquake.

By Karl H. von Wiegand.

(Copyright, 1916, by Press Pub. Co.)

GERMAN CORPS HEADQUARTERS, NEAR GOMMECOURT, Aug. 14, by courier to Berlin, via Amsterdam and London, Aug. 18.—A wide path of havoc, devastation and desolation extends for many miles behind the Somme-Ancre battle line. From Roye on the south to above Arras on the north it is a continuous picture of desolation. None of the tornado and cyclone wrecked towns that I have ever seen in the Middle Western States presented such scenes of destruction.

I was in the San Francisco earthquake and fire. These villages and towns, in the most beautiful and fertile section of France, through which I have passed in the last few days, are minute replicas of what San Francisco was then, only more complete.

The French, from what I have seen, appear to still exercise some restraint in shelling the towns and villages which, after all, are their own, contenting themselves upon occasion with a few shells to make the places uncomfortable for possible troops.

Roye is partially in ruins, though about 1000 French still cling to their homes. Peronne is burning, being shelled daily. Bapaume is a picture of destruction. Some 400 of the population refused to leave, living like cave dwellers in cellars on the edge of the town.

A French writer recently suggested that the strip of trenches and battlefields, from Switzerland to the sea, be made into a grand avenue of victory in commemoration of the war. A grand avenue of the greatest human tragedy, lined with the funeral plume-like cypresses of Boecklin's paintings, would be more fitting.

I walked through miles of trenches today around Heduterne and Gommecourt, six to eight feet deep and four to six feet wide at the top. Within the district commanded by one regiment were 15 miles of these zig-zag trenches. This army alone has close to 300 miles of trenches, and that is only a narrow sector in the persent battle line. More than 2,000,000 men on both sides have often worked day and night during two years digging these trenches and constructing bomb proofs, many of them 3· feet deep and reinforced with timber and concrete.

We started out at 4 o'clock this morning, Capt. Count Limbourg and a Captain detailed from this corps staff suggesting we take advantage of the cover and the light of the morning to get up close to the British trenches. We walked toward Gommecourt, which forms the extreme northern point of the Anglo-French offensive in the battle of the Somme, though the opening six days of drumming by the allies' artillery extended even up to Arras. This was to keep the Germans guessing as to what points the real onset would come.

Nearing Gommecourt, with Hebuterne on our left, we came across soldiers plowing the fields, and others gathering a crop of oats under cover of the fog, almost within rifle range of the British trenches.

Only during the foggy hours of the morning and the nights are the horses which draw the cannon turned into peaceful plow animals. The moment the mist lifts the fields are lonely and deserted.

After walking about five miles through the rear trenches, with a board floor throughout, the fog-like mist enabled us to cover the open ground to the next trench.

When within a few yards of the trench a British battery immediately in front, near Hebuterne, opened fire. We hastily jumped into a shell crater.

An officer greeted us and took us to regimental headquarters in a most extensive subterranean chamber, 30 feet under the ground, with several exits. I have been on a considerable number of fronts, but have not seen anything like these newly constructed bombproofs in the trenches. They are so deep, so strongly built and reinforced that each is nothing less than a small but powerful fortress. Nothing short of a 38 (15-inch) or possibly a 30-centimeter (12-inch) shell could wreck this bombproof.

Two rooms were the sleeping quarters of the regimental staff officers; there was a pantry, with lots of good things to eat and drink, a dining room, which was also a workroom, and telephone exchange. The Captain commanding one of the battalions said that if he desired he could send my dispatches to Berlin from there.

Returning, we passed a huge cross, with a life-sized figure of Christ, of which there are so many at the crossroads on the Somme battle line. British shells had made a circle of craters around the cross and its semi-circular hedge, some within a few feet of the figure, but not a fragment had touched the cross.

Calling at a division headquarters in a house under some trees, we found two officers in the garden debating whether tomato plants, which had been set out for the benefit of the staff, should be trimmed. In another corner of the garden a soldier was tying up rose bushes. All this with shells landing every little while on the village and in the vicinity of the garden.

A gray cat was the sole occupant of another village we passed through, almost levelled to the ground. In still another one, where but the walls of buildings remained, the Germans had constructed a small hospital under the floor of a building which had sheltered the wounded, but which was wrecked by shells.

Below the cellar another story deep was excavated, and there in niches in the earthen wall were cots for the wounded and a place to operate. Industry and masterly organization are apparent everywhere behind the trenches as well as in the trenches.

Luncheon with the Commander in Chief and his staff at his headquarters, and a dinner at night in an officers' casino in a place north of Bapaume, where I enjoyed the best steak in many weeks, closed the day. But even the dinner couldn't be enjoyed without some excitement. Flyers attacked the place and dropped several bombs.

MORGAN IS PLAIN MORGAN

McAdoo's Son Has Name Stenciled on His White Jumper; Lectures to Begin Soon.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch and the New York World.

NAVAL RENDEZVOUS, FORT PONT BAY, L. I., Aug. 18.—Seven of the nine battleships assigned to carry civilians on the country's first naval training cruise are assembled in this bay. The Maine, New Jersey and Kentucky, with the New York contingent arrived yesterday. Next came the Rhode Island, Rear Admiral Helm's flag ship, the Kearsarge, the Louisiana and Illinois.

During the trip from New York the rookies were chiefly engaged in finding their sea legs, learning their way about ship and getting acquainted with their officers and with each other.

The scion of the house of Morgan is now plain Morgan to his fellows on board the Maine. He apparently is enjoying the trip. "F. H. McAdoo" stenciled on the white jumper of a rather tall recruit, announces that the son of the Secretary of the Treasury is within. W. O. Iselin, also of the Maine has been given place as quartermaster, and stood his first watch last night.

The run up the coast was made under weather conditions so delightful that many of the recruits sat up until a late hour talking to each other and their helpful new friends, the blue jackets of the regular crew. In the evening there was a moving picture show on the Maine.

"The real work of shaking down process did not begin until today. On the Maine it started off with a drill that lasted a half hour or more. Then the recruits were assembled at quarters and the division officers explained many things to them. While they were engaged the New Jersey hauled down a bit of bunting she had been flying, and the Virginia fired a salute of 13 guns. The coming down of the senior officers' pennant and a salute to the broad pennant of Admiral Helm was then explained to the recruits.

Next the siren gave a shriek, and blue jackets of the Maine went rushing in various directions. The whistle was a signal for collision quarters. Water-tight doors clanged to and overside went the collision mat, ready for plastering against any wound. Then "attention" was sounded and the drill and its purpose explained.

Admiral Helm told the Post-Dispatch correspondent that a series of lectures will be given on shipboard by Rear Admiral Gleaves, commanding the torpedo flotilla, and by Captains Sims, Niblack and Vogelsang. In order to give the recruits an opportunity to hear these lectures, all of them will be assembled on the flag ship and on the Louisiana.

Illinois Woman Died Four Hours After Marriage.

HAVANA, Ill., Aug. 18.—A Coroner's inquest into the mysterious death of Mrs. James van Auken, a bride of four hours, will be held today, it was announced, if the physician who attended her can be found. The husband was expected to be an important witness.

The couple were married here yesterday and immediately took the train for Kilbourne, Ill. Reaching there they hired a horse and buggy for a drive of five miles to the home of the bride's sister, where Van Auken said his bride had died on the trip from Kilbourne.

USE COCOANUT OIL FOR WASHING HAIR

If you want to keep your hair in good condition, be careful what you wash it with.

Most soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle, and is very harmful. Just plain mulsified cocoanut oil (which is pure and entirely greaseless), is much better than the most expensive soap or anything else you can use for shampooing, as this can't possibly injure the hair.

Simply moisten your hair with water and rub it in. One or two teaspoonfuls will make an abundance of rich, creamy lather, and cleanses the hair and scalp thoroughly. The lather rinses out easily, and removes every particle of dust, dirt, dandruff and excessive oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and it leaves it fine and silky, bright, fluffy and easy to manage.

You can get mulsified cocoanut oil at most any drug store. It is very cheap, and a few ounces is enough to last everyone in the family for months.—ADV.

Railway Presidents at White House Today Oppose 8-Hour Plan

tomed to your kind of grips."

The President smiled his appreciation of Carter's thoughtfulness. After they left the White House the men were in conference for two hours at their hall, but decided to delay a formal decision until today.

Optimism marked every move of the brotherhood men during the day. They were pleased over the President's plan as outlined to them by their leaders in informal conferences and appeared to like it even better after their meeting with the President and the two frank discussions of the situation among themselves.

One of the railway presidents, when asked whether they were prepared to accept the suggestions of President Wilson, said:

"We may have some arguments to put forward ourselves that he has not yet considered. Whatever the President asks us to do, I am convinced he will ask in good faith, and personally I think he would sink his political future rather than play politics in a question affecting the nation as this does.

"If he can be brought to see that our demand is just he would side with capital and let the people judge him on election day.

"The railroad employes are really asking for increased wages. Maybe they ought to have it. But let us have someone to arbitrate the matter and see if they should. Mr. Wilson will not put us before the people as 'capital defying the people's will' if he thinks our insistence upon arbitration on the question is just."

CHEMIST TELLS OF FEEDING 1000 MEN AT $12.50 A DAY

Speaker at Meeting of Therapeutic Association at Nevada, Mo., Does This One Month Each Year.

NEVADA, Mo., Aug. 18.—The annual convention of the American Suggestive Therapeutical Association, in session at the Weltmer Institute here for four days, came to an end this morning. Delegates were here from every state in the union and from several foreign countries. Nevada was selected as the meeting place for 1917. Officers chosen include: President, George F. Negaard, D. S. T., Brainard, Minn.; first vice president, Prof. Sidney A. Weltmer, Nevada; second vice president, Dr. Eugene Christian, New York; secretary, S. W. Weltmer, Nevada; treasurer, A. E. Pinckney, Nevada.

The closing address was by Dr. Eugene Christian, a noted New York food chemist. Dr. Christian told of concentrating his charity for each year in the month before Christmas, when he annually feeds 1000 unemployed men three meals daily. Last year, Dr. Christian said, the most of feeding the thousand did not exceed $12.50 a day, or only one and one-fourth cents a man. During the time he is feeding the unemployed, Dr. Christian stated, he himself lives entirely on the food he gives the men and he therefore knows it is sufficient to sustain life.

SLAVS ADVANCE THROUGH OWN ARTILLERY FIRE, SAY AUSTRIANS

Officers From Front Tell of Unusual Tactics to Draw Teutons From Shelters.

VIENNA, Aug. 18.—The Russian offensive against the Austro-Hungarian troops is being conducted, according to Austrian officers returned from the front, with tactics that hardly have a precedent.

These tactics are, briefly, to annihilate the Austrians by forcing Russian soldiers to advance in their own artillery fire, drawing the Austrians from their bomb and shell proof shelters into hand-to-hand combat, and then mowing down both Austrians and Russians by a withering drumfire. Great Russian losses, it is claimed, are due to this method.

The Russian method of attack in the Bukowina and Volhynia, the Austrians say, consists of artillery preparation lasting from 24 to 48 hours. Then come the first Russian infantry troops, in from six to 14 rows, driven forward by Russian machine guns and by Cossacks armed with the dreaded "Nagaikas" or lead-tipped whips.

As they advance the Russian artillery fire abates somewhat, but between it and the Austrian fire from 40 to 50 per cent of the first troops sometimes reach the trenches. Their arrival naturally forces the Austrians to abandon their shelters, and as soon as they do so the Russian drumfire begins again.

BACON TO RUN FOR SENATE

Wants Nomination in New York, and G. O. P. Row Is Expected.

NEW YORK, Aug. 18.—Robert Bacon has entered the Republican primaries as a candidate for United States Senator from New York. He has thus precipitated what many politicians expect will be the most impressive party fight any candidate for President has faced in his home State for years.

Charles E. Hughes has indicated to friends here that he must not be dragged into the row. He also has sent specific instructions that the headquarters of the Republican National Committee in this city must be kept absolutely aloof from primary contests.

What to Use and Avoid on Faces That Perspire

Skin, to be healthy, must breathe. It also must perspire—must expel, through the pores, its share of the body's waste material. Certain creams and powders clog the pores, interfering both with elimination and breathing, especially during the heated period. If more women understood this, there would be fewer self-ruined complexions. If they would use ordinary mercolized wax they would have healthy complexions. This remarkable substance actually absorbs a bad skin, also unclogging the pores. Result: The fresher, younger under-skin is permitted to breathe and to show itself. The exquisite new complexion gradually peeps out, one free from any appearance of artificiality. Obtain an ounce of mercolized wax from your druggist and try it. Apply nightly like cold cream, for a week or two, washing it off mornings.

To remove wrinkles, here's a marvelously effective treatment, which also acts naturally and harmlessly: Dissolve an ounce of powdered saxolite in a half pint witch hazel and use as a wash lotion.—ADV.

STRIKERS TO ASK FOR MURDER CHARGE AGAINST SCHNEIDER

Milk Drivers Hire Special Prosecutor in Case of Dairy Employe Who Killed William Mitchell.

Striking milkmen will endeavor to have the charge against George Schneider, a St. Louis Dairy Co. employe, who shot and killed William Mitchell, a striker, changed from manslaughter in the fourth degree to murder in the first or second degree.

Edward W. Foristel was employed today by the strikers as a special prosecutor in the case. He said he would ask a continuance in the hearing, which is set for Aug. 28 in Judge Clark's court, and would ask Circuit Attorney Harvey, after he returns from his vacation, to change the charge. Assistant Circuit Attorney Bishop entered the present charge, which the strikers consider too mild.

Schneider killed Mitchell after a policeman had taken Mitchell into custody. He said Mitchell was one of several men who beat him a few minutes before because he took out a wagon for the dairy company.

TERMINAL YARDMASTER IN MADISON FATALLY INJURED

Crushed Between Freight Cars, He Dies on the Operating Table in Hospital.

A. M. Patterson of 1919 Bremen avenue, night yardmaster for the Terminal Railroad Association at Madison, Ill., was crushed between two freight cars in the Madison yards at 5 o'clock this morning and died on the operating table in St. Elizabeth's Hospital. He was 45 years old, unmarried and had been employed by the Terminal for 12 years.

WOMAN HIT BY ANOTHER'S AUTO

Miss Emma Meyer, 48 years old, of Cape Girardeau, Mo., who is visiting friends at 4984 Blow street, was knocked down at Grand and Laclede avenues, shortly before noon today, by an automobile of Mrs. Theresa Cassidy of 1802 South Jefferson avenue, while she was attempting to board a Grand car, and was seriously injured.

She was taken to the city hospital. She suffered a concussion of the brain, a scalp wound and a probable fracture of the skull. Mrs. Cassidy was arrested, charged with felonious wounding.

EXPERTS DEVISE REGULATIONS TO CHECK PARALYSIS

Conference Adopts Report Recommending Close Watch on Interstate Travel.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 18.—Warning that the infantile paralysis epidemic may appear next summer in other states not gravely affected now unless drastic measures are taken to control its course was given today to the national conference of public health officers by the special committee named to recommend ways and means for its suppression.

The committee recommended that state health authorities be notified by uniform health certificates of removal of all children under 16 years of age from epidemic areas. Quarantine of one state or community against another was disapproved. The committee recommended that during the unusual prevalence of infantile paralysis schools should not be opened without medical supervision by a health authority.

"When schools are opened," the committee recommended, "beginnings should be made with high schools and proceeding to lower age groups no more rapidly than complete medical examinations can be made."

Certificates to Travel.

Certificates for interstate travel, the committee held, should be signed by Federal or state health officers.

"Certificates of private physicians will not alone be a sufficient basis for the issue of a permit to travel," the report said. "Permits for interstate travel should be based on medical examination. It is said that the Federal Government can perform all duties of notification and certification required in interstate relations in case of unusual prevalence of infantile paralysis."

The committee report was adopted with unimportant changes and the conference virtually was concluded.

A standing committee to study the disease throughout the country and furnish reports to Federal and state authorities was named, consisting of Dr. St. Clair Drake of Illinois, chairman; Dr. T. D. Tuttle of Washington, Dr. C. W. Garrison of Arkansas, Dr. W. B. Collins of Texas and Dr. D. N. Roberg of Oregon.

Assistant Surgeon-General W. C. Rucker, who, with Acting Surgeon-General A. H. Glennan, presided over the conference yesterday, gave out the following synoposis of the views of the speakers:

Against Opening Schools.

"It appears to be the consensus of opinion that segregation of persons with the disease is desirable and that opening of schools is inadvisable. Travel is dangerous when it permits movement of acute or chronic carriers of the disease. The evidence is against insect transmission, and transmission by food is hypothetical."

Reporting on a scientific study of symptoms and control of the epidemic in New York, conducted by many state, city and Federal scientists, Surgeon Wade Frost of the Public Health Service said:

"Frankly we don't know how the disease is transmitted, nor its cause. The evidence strongly points to persons as the carriers."

"The evidence is that it is purely a human disease and if contagious a large proportion of persons exposed are immune. It must be spread very largely from sources other than sick persons, mostly by adults. Against that is the known seasonal prevalence. Our theories do not exclude transmission by insects. Transmission by the lower animals is hypothetical. We hardly suspect any but dogs and cats. Its rapid spread indicates human carriers."

Severe in Rural Districts.

Despite the New York epidemic, he said, the most striking characteristic of the disease is that it is most severe in rural communities, rather than in cities. He said 90 per cent of cases occurred among children under 10 years old and that 75 to 90 per cent of infections can be traced to previous cases of direct contact. There are few infections of persons exposed in their own families, he said.

Dr. George Draper of the New York Health Board said quarantine of paralyzed persons is not effective against transmission. He said milk possibly is a source of infection. At first negroes were believed immune, but cases lately have appeared among that race, he said.

Infantile Paralysis Hits Chicago Hospital.

CHICAGO, Aug. 18.—Eighty known cases of paralysis have been received at the Cook County and Durham hospitals since July 1, it was announced today. An average of three patients a day is being received at the county hospital.

Child Stricken With Paralysis at Vernon, Ill.

CENTRALIA, Ill., Aug. 18.—The 13-year-old son of Dr. Stevens of Stewartson was stricken with infantile paralysis Saturday and quarantined yesterday at the home of his uncle, William Jones, in Vernon, north of here, where he was visiting. Both legs are paralyzed.

Policeman Disgusted With Job.

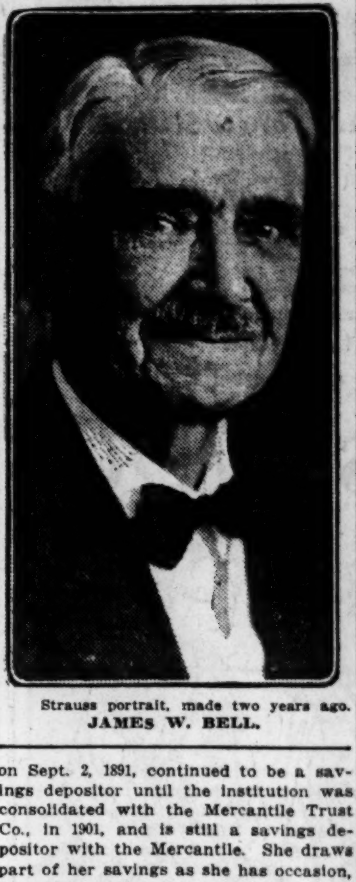
Patrolman Henry Milton of the Carr Street District gave in his star, revolver and manual and announced that he had quit, last night. Milton, who had been on the force for 14 years, was assigned to strike duty at the Grafeman Dairy Co. stable when he reported at the station. He told Desk Sergeant Gleason he was tired of being rousted from pillar to post and that he had not had a regular beat in a long while.

Greeks Are "Savingest" of Them All, Says Banker Retired After 57 Years

James W. Bell Declares That Irish First Led in Thrift and Then Italians.

HE MAKES COMPARISONS

Shows That Other Cities Have Larger Deposits in Savings Institutions Than St. Louis.



Strauss portrait, made two years ago.
JAMES W. BELL.

St. Louisans are not savers, according to James W. Bell, 90 years old, of 5045 Westminster place, who has just resigned as manager of the savings department of the Mercantile Trust Co., after having been connected with banks in the city for 50 years. Practically all his life he has been trying to persuade St. Louisans to save money and trying to learn why they don't save. Many have been induced by him to become savers by habit, but he is still seeking the explanation of the backwardness of the citizens to prepare for a rainy day.

Bell has the figures to prove that St Louisans are not as thrifty as the people of other cities. He estimates that the savings of St. Louisans are about $30,000,000, while one bank in Cleveland, the Society of Savings, has deposits of $56,000,000, and the Society of Savings of Philadelphia and the Bowery Bank of New York each have more than $100,000,000 of savings deposits, while the total savings deposits in New York are about $800,000,000. Chicago has $187,000,000.

Getting More Thrifty.

"But St. Louis is doing better," Bell said yesterday to a Post-Dispatch reporter. "The people are saving more than they used to. When I began in 1859 trying to get them to save it was uphill work. I began by organizing a savings department in the foundry with which I was connected. The men were encouraged to leave a little of their earnings each week to their credit with the company. The plan was working pretty well when the war necessitated the closing down of the foundry.

"Twenty-five years ago, when I started the St. Louis Safe Deposit and Savings Bank at 513 Locust street it was still hard work to get people to save, but I persisted. The little savings banks were put in circulation and in 11 years the savings accumulated through these were more than $2,000,000!

"Foreigners who come here are the best savers. Formerly the Irish did the most saving. They were succeeded by the Italians and now the Greeks save most. Chinamen are good savers and excellent depositors, causing little trouble by checking in and out. Poles also are good savings depositors.

Married Women as Depositors.

"Two-thirds of the savings depositors are women, who are permitted by their husbands to open the savings accounts in their own names.

"One woman, who was the second depositor when the St. Louis Safe Deposit and Savings Bank opened for business, on Sept. 2, 1891, continued to be a savings depositor until the institution was consolidated with the Mercantile Trust Co., in 1901, and is still a savings depositor with the Mercantile. She draws part of her savings as she has occasion, from time to time, but usually has more than $1000 to her credit. Many savings accounts of the old company are still carried by the Mercantile.

"All persons dependent upon their income should save methodically a percentage of that income, weekly or monthly. It is difficult to say what the percentage should be. It is not possible to lay down a hard and fast rule, because circumstances vary, but I should say the savings should be 5 to 10 per cent of the earnings."

In all his busy lifetime Bell has taken only one long vacation. That was when, in 1880 and 1881, he took a trip around the world. In the past 20 years he has been out of the city only four days. That was when his daughter, Mrs. H. P. Johnson of Memphis, built a new home and prevailed upon him to come and see it.

He was responsible for the trust companies establishing savings departments. He persuaded John T. Davis to open a savings department in connection with the St. Louis Trust Co. and the others quickly fell in line.

Although he does not seem more than 70 years old, his long life and vigor are not due to following any rules of living. He has worked hard always and has lived simply and naturally, with walking as his only exercise.

He was presented yesterday with a loving cup by the officers and directors of the Mercantile Trust Co.

JADED GOTHAM IS TREATED TO A PLAY THAT'S 'DIFFERENT'

"Turn to the Right," a Farce, Makes Big Hit at Opening Performance.

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Aug. 18.—It has remained for Winchell Smith and John F. Hazzard—the first is one of the co-authors of "The Boomerang," the second is an actor—to write this season's "different" play. Not in a year has there been such sincerity in an audience's applause as that which accompanied the first performance of "Turn to the Right" at the Gaiety Theater last night. And every handclap was legitimately earned by the authors and actors.

On the "prodigal son" formula of a "way down East," this Smith-Hazzard fun syndicate has engrafted a "Get-Rich-Quick Wallingford." Not one detail of the ancient sentimental "me mother" melodrama has been missed—from the prodigal's return and the evening prayer to the peach jam and the mortgage on the old farm—but also not one element of amiable and humorous crook comedy has been overlooked. The combination, after all, is sheer farce. Nothing like it could actually have happened under the sun. But it is a medley to dim the eyes of sophisticated playgoers with joy.

The Mortgaged Peach Farm.

The prologue in an Ossining pawnshop, with the unjustly convicted prodigal just released from prison, was a bit ominous. Here was the "held out to temptation" theme with a vengeance. The return to the mortgaged peach farm, just in time to thwart the skin, in the village deacon, into whose clutches had fallen the Frau's widowed mother—her pain-making abilities were only exceeded by her righteousness—was equally disturbing. But when the prodigal's two crook friends drop off a conveniently stalled freight train to taste rural domestic life and peach jam for the first time—here was undiluted joy.

The scene at the dinner table, in which the crooks resolved to rob the deacon's "general store" in order to pay the debt the widow owed him—afterward they rough-housed the money away from him and put it back in the store—swerved "Turn to Right" into the straight road to success. An almost equally funny third act, crammed with amusing caricatures and humorous observation followed.

Well-Balanced Cast.

The cast was nearly ideal for a play of this kind. In an entirely different way William E. Meehan and Frank Nelson, as the two crooks, paralleled the hit in "Potash and Perlmutter" made by Barney Bernard and Julius Tannen two seasons ago. Forrest Winant was excellent as the prodigal. Ruth Chester was typically the "mother" of rural melodrama. Then, too, there were Samuel Reed as the deacon and Edgar Nelson as the village fat boy, not to mention Louise Rutter, Lucy Colton and Alice Hastings—all capital—as the simpering village maidens. No one will grudge the laughter he bestows upon the truly humorous lines of this diverting play.

Farmer Dies of Runaway Hurt.

The Coroner's office was notified today that John Green, 62 years old, a farmer of Pacific, Mo., died yesterday at St. John's Hospital, from a fractured skull, sustained when his horse ran away near Catawissa a week ago and dragged him.

Body Found in Cahokia Creek.

The body of an unidentified man was found this morning in Cahokia Creek at First street, East St. Louis. It had been in the water about a week.

Incentive

It is hard to save without an incentive. Few people save unless they have something to save for.

Is there anything better guaranteed to make you happy than to have a sum of money of your own? Do you want to get an education? Do you want to have enough money to give your child an education?

Do you want to travel?

Do you want to build a house?

Do you want to get married?

All of these things take money. Are you putting something aside right along in a Mercantile Savings Account so as to gratify these proper desires?

HUGHES MAKES 4 TALKS IN OREGON, FEELING "BULLY"

Nominee Discusses National Honor and the Tariff Before Large Crowds.

MEDFORD, Ore., Aug. 18.—Charles E. Hughes talked of the tariff and the national honor yesterday to crowds which assembled at stations on the way to California. From the rear platform the nominee made four addresses at Riddle, Roseburg, Grant's Pass and here. In each he also summarized his stand on preparedness, protection of American rights and industrial co-operation.

At Riddle Mr. Hughes declared that a "depreciation in American repute, due to a policy of vacillation, had brought the country nearer to war than it would have been had a firm and consistent policy been maintained.

"Those who think we are decadent and weak and haven't got the old indomitable spirit are very much mistaken," he said. "They do not represent the country."

In his address at Grant's Pass, the nominee defined dominant Americanism as follows:

A Good Drive Ahead.

"We must have a good drive ahead, and there is no reason why in this country, with its ability and natural resources, we should not have permanent prosperity. To do that we must look after our own. That is what I mean by dominant Americanism, able to take care of American interests.

"In addition to that, we want also—and you cannot have much of a nation without it—an intense regard for our national honor and a disposition to maintain it. I am solicitous to preserve peace and good will.

"We want the friendship and good will of all the nations of the world. They are very friendly disposed to us. But if we are to keep out of trouble, we must respect ourselves and have others respect us. There is no safe guarantee of peace when others begin to see how much they can trifle you and you decide you won't stand it. They have got to know you mean what you say and in the things which vitally concern you that you are prepared to maintain them. That is good Americanism. It will give us peace with honor. That is what America wants."

Says He Feels Bully.

In his address at Roseburg, Mr. Hughes said:

"You must have loyalty to the flag and unswerving loyalty to the principles of our institutions. You must have a keen appreciation of what American opportunity means and what you must do to preserve it. You must preserve it by encouraging every American achievement. You must be sure we do not leave unused the national powers which will give us national prosperity.

The nominee said he felt "bully" and that his voice was improving.

POLICE FIRE SHOTS IN CHASE

Two men, one of whom carried a bundle, ran when policemen approached them at Fourth and Market streets last night. They were joined by two other men and the bundle, containing women's wearing apparel was dropped in the flight.

The patrolmen fired several shots and other patrolmen joined in the chase and the shooting. One man was captured. The others ran through the lobby of the Laclede Hotel and escaped. The man arrested said he was Albert Ellison, 18 years old, of 917 Hickory street. He professed to know nothing of the other men or of the contents of the bundle.

FIVE AUTOS STOLEN, ONE FOUND

Five automobiles were stolen last night and one was recovered. It belonged to Otto B. Klein of 3934 Hartford street and was driven away from in front of 5800 Gravois avenue. It was found at Fairview and Giles avenues, a short distance away.

The other machines stolen belonged to G. W. Mecker, 1435 Clara avenue; Charles A. Teutenberg, Clayton, Mo.; John Schweitzer, 3850 Cote Brilliante avenue, and John A. Dowdall, Pierce Building.

INQUIRY INTO PLANT TRAGEDY

The police are trying to learn if the death of the man who was caught in a fly wheel in the branch power plant of the Union Electric Light and Power Co., 615 Lucas avenue, Wednesday night, was other than accidental. The investigation was ordered last night when a watchman found a crumpled newspaper in the engine pit where the man was killed on the margin of which was scribbled, "I'm gone for good. Goodby."

Several persons who viewed the body at the morgue said that they believed the man was Joseph Selther, who formerly was employed in an iron foundry at Second and Destrehan streets.

Police Asked to Find Husbands.

Mrs. Roxey M. Buck of 4038 Westminster place has asked the police to look for her husband, Searcy M. Buck, 29 years old, a collector for the Laclede Gaslight Co. She said that he drew his semi-monthly pay Wednesday and has not been heard from since. The police last night were informed that Theodore Hetkowsky, 45 years old, had been missing from his home, 1122 Monroe street, since July 20. His wife, Mrs. Mary Hetkowsky, requested a police search for him.

Knocks Boy Under Wagon.

Leonard Hunter, 14 years old, of 4114 Nebraska avenue, was riding his bicycle along Jefferson avenue last evening when a man hurrying across the street at Clark avenue collided with the wheel and knocked the boy beneath a wagon belonging to the Laclede Gas Light Co. Hunter was hurt on the left leg and right arm.

AMBULANCE SECTION PRAISED

French General Says Americans Are Models of Coolness.

PARIS, Aug. 18.—Section Seven of the American Ambulance Field Service is cited by Gen. Mangin in an army corps order just issued for its services to the division of the French army to which it is attached. This portion of the order reads:

"This section of the American Ambulance Field Service has shown for more than 20 months a most complete spirit of sacrifice and has rendered greatest services to the division to which it is attached in securing the removal of wounded under best conditions. There is not one of its members who is not a model of coolness and abnegation. A number of them have been wounded."

Two Say Pockets Were Picked.

Julius Friesland was robbed of $10 last night at Thirteenth street and Franklin avenue. John L. Peters said he lost $30 when boarding a Grand car at Meramec street.

The calendar of entertainments in behalf of the Post-Dispatch Pure Milk and Free Ice Fund for this evening is unusually well filled and the character of the affairs is strikingly meritorious and promising of excellent returns in pleasure and additions to the babies' relief fund.

At the home of Adele and Billy Hynes, 6839 Garner place, nearly a score of girls and boys are to produce an original play, "Garner Prize." On the rear lawn of the home of Leslie Jacobs, 5978 Hamilton avenue, a large company of children will give a lawn festival of the ambitious type; at the new home of little Miss Miriam and Master Cyril Aye, 4157 Botanical avenue, several girls and boys are to present a superior vaudeville program, including fancy dances, songs, drills, followed by the sale of refreshments, the admission price being only 5 cents; at the home of Mrs. E. A. Morgan, 1421 Granville place, six boys are to entertain with a picture and vaudeville show, in which little Selma Pachter will assist with a reading of "The Daughter of the Regiment." In all of these affairs the preliminary work has been of the zealous and intelligent order, parents of the youthful workers lending enthusiastic co-operation, and popular interest is broad and positive.

Caddies Give Their Aid.

Caddies of the Algonquin Club, about 35 young boys, are represented in today's acknowledgements of contributions to the Pure Milk and Free Ice Fund in the sum of $5. This was raised through the co-operation of a member of the club, who donated a golf stick for disposition as arranged by the caddies. This was done on the basis of 10 cents, and the cherished article came into possession of the youngest of the boys, about 10 years old.

Paul and Virginia Freund of 3647 Lafayette avenue and Helen and Arthur Fitzsimmons of 3615 Lafayette, who have for some years past regularly and efficiently supported the cause of the poor babies, conducted a lemonade stand, where they also sold soda water, at Grand and Lafayette avenues, the proceeds totaling $3.20. In forwarding this sum the youthful philanthropists wrote that they hope to continue their work for the noble cause for many years to come.

Another lemonade stand for the same cause and by children who are among the army of regular workers, was operated at 6215 Washington boulevard by little Misses Sarah and Florence Williams of the number given and Alice Sheehan of 6239 Washington boulevard, their enterprise adding $2.25 to the Fund.

Six little girls and one boy gave a charming show for the benefit of the poor babies at 1309 South Boyle avenue, entertaining a large and deeply interested audience with impressive songs, dances, etc., cleverly done. The proceeds aggregated $1.62. These little dependable friends of the babies are Ellen Guittar, Pearl Aubuchon, Laura Wycoff, Loretta Guittar, Hazel Williams, May Guittar and Leroy Guittar.

Others Are Active.

Two workers for the Pure Milk and Free Ice Fund living in Webster Groves earned $1 by selling lemonade and flowers, the latter grown in their yard. They write to the Post-Dispatch: "Please buy some milk for the poor babies." This note was signed by Margaret M. McClure of 137 Elm avenue, Webster Groves, and Eddy V. Atwood of Carthage, Ill., who is a guest in the McClure home.

A show at 4529 Oakland avenue yielded $1.80 for the Pure Milk and Free Ice Fund. The boys who arranged this successful enterprise are Donald Wilt of Tulsa, Ok., who is in St. Louis on a visit; Ted Steinmeyer of 4527 Oakland avenue, and Stephen Ambruster, who gave an impersonation of Charlie Chaplin.

The sale of home-made candy, root beer, lemonade and "rosette" fritters by Ida Haenni of 6220 Famous avenue, and Louise and Lilian Schoening of 6224 Famous, earned $5 for the benefit of the babies. The stand was prettily decorated and the articles on sale were displayed in an artistic array.

Some More Entertainers.

"The Musical Minstrel Maids," a vaudeville entertainment, was produced for the Pure Milk and Free Ice Fund at 4425 Gibson avenue, yielding $3. For several days prior to the entertainment the children gave unstintedly of their time to the sale of tickets and rehearsals. The admission charge was a penny and a large audience thoroughly enjoyed the picturesque affair, which was under the direction of Katherine Reith of 4425 Gibson avenue.

Those who participated, all of whom live on Gibson avenue, are Sidney Phelps, Robert and Helen Mills, Fern and Lillie May Apple, and Roy Dean.

PIG DECREASE IN GERMANY

Falling Off of 8,054,000 Reported in a Year.

THE HAGUE, Aug. 18.—The Berlin Reichsanzeiger, the German official organ, contains final figures of the empire-wide cattle census of Dec. 1, 1915. These, compared with the December, 1914, figures, show a decrease in all heads, especially of pigs, as follows:

Pigs, decreased by 8,054,000 to 17,287,000 and horned cattle by 1,512,000 to 20,317,000. Horses decreased by 94,000, calves, 673,000, and sheep, 398,000.

SOCIETY

FORMAL announcement was made this afternoon of the engagement of Miss Edith MacCarthy to Chauncey P. Heath, at a bridge party given by the bride-elect to about 25 of her friends. The place cards, flowers and all the appointments at the party were in pink.

Miss MacCarthy is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John H. MacCarthy of 4959 Park View place.

Mr. Heath is the son of Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Heath of Webster Groves. He is in the real estate business and is well known as a swimmer. He held the national championship for 10 and 5 miles in 1912, was Western champion for all distances for several years. He is an active member of the Missouri Athletic Association.

Mr. Heath has been Miss MacCarthy's cavalier for about two years. When he failed for the first time in a number of years to enter the swimming contest this summer and it was learned that he had bought out his business partner and was too busy to train, the rumor of the engagement became persistent. The marriage probably will be in the autumn.

The marriage of Miss Marion Bond, daughter of Judge and Mrs. Henry W. Bond, to William DeForest Crowell has been set for Oct. 17. It will be a church wedding and will be one of the notable nuptial events of the early season.

The engagement was announced recently at Naragansett, R. I., where Miss Bond is with her parents. Mr. Crowell also is spending the summer there.

Mrs. R. O. Kendall and her young daughter, Miss Florence Kendall, are expected to arrive this evening to be the guests of Mrs. Kendall's sister, Mrs. Joseph F. Liebke, and Mr. Liebke at their home in Normandy.

Mr. and Mrs. James Francis Murphy of 5339 Maple avenue and Miss Margaret and Elizabeth Murphy have returned from Colorado Springs, Colo., where they spent about a month.

Dr. and Mrs. W. G. Letterman of 785 Euclid terrace, returned home after a few weeks' stay at Macatawa, Mich.

Mrs. Mary Ball of 3722 Arkansas avenue has returned from a month's visit with Dr. and Mrs. A. C. Ball of Cleveland, O.

MANY WOMEN GO TO SEE "WHERE ARE MY CHILDREN?"

Film at New Grand Central Is of Propaganda Sort, but Well Constructed.

Women were greatly in the majority in the capacity gatherings at the New Grand Central Theater last night, when the film "Where Are My Children?" had its first St. Louis presentation. This film is of the sort intended to instruct, rather than to entertain, but it is superior in dramatic construction to most picture-plays of the propaganda variety.

Richard Walton, District Attorney, wonders dumbly, through years of married life, why no child comes to his home. As a part of his official duty, he prosecutes a conscientious physician who has circulated birth control literature among the poor. At the same time, Mrs. Walton is spreading anti-motherhood ideas among social butterflies, and is practicing birth control to the point of elimination, with the aid of a physician who is not conscientious. Walton at length has to prosecute this physician for homicide, and he then learns whey he is childless. Returning home, he drives out a parlorful of women, and puts to his wife the question which forms the play's title. Vain efforts to atone for the past, and a childless old age, form the sequel.

A symbolical introduction carries out the fanciful idea that the souls of children are pressing against the gates of some ethereal realm, seeking release in the form of earthly birth. Tyrone Power, in the leading role, is a strong and dignified figure. There is too much getting into and out of automobiles. This five-reel film does not appear to have been unusually expensive in the making, but the management has advanced the prices of admission, and last night's crowd seemed willing enough to pay the higher price.

MAN BELIEVES HE WAS ROBBED

First Said Money Was All Right, Then Accused Policeman.

Two patrolmen at 3 o'clock this morning found William White of Cincinnati asleep on the sidewalk in front of 1316 Chestnut street. They awoke him and asked him if he had been robbed. He searched his pockets and after counting $4.10, said his money was all right.

An hour later White approached the two policemen at Twelfth and Chestnut streets and accused them of having robbed him of a gold watch and $40. They took him to police headquarters and told him to repeat the charge. "Well, somebody must have robbed me," he said. He was ordered held for investigation.

COUPLE TAKEN FROM AUTO

Man Sent to City Hospital—Police Question Wife.

Charles D. Wahles, a life insurance agent, living at the Oliver Hotel, 914 North Grand avenue, and his wife were taken by policemen from an automobile which Wahles was driving at King's highway and Delmar boulevard about 1 o'clock this morning when the policemen noticed that the man's face was blood-stained.

Wahles was sent to the city hospital and the wife, after making a statement to policemen at the Laclede Avenue Station, was sent home. She said her husband took her to a St. Louis County resort last night and that he met some strangers there. She said she supposed one of these men struck him in the face.

B TROOP SOON TO TAKE UP WORK OF BORDER PATROL

St. Louisans Will Be First Missouri Troops Assigned to Such Duty.

LAREDO, Tex., Aug. 18.—B Troop, the St. Louis cavalry organization, will be the first of the Missouri troops to see real border patrol duty. It leaves before the end of this week to relieve some of the regular army cavalry on the Rio Grande.

The safety of many civilians and soldiers may depend on their care and alertness, and upon their return to their quarters near Forest Park Highlands, they can justly say that they have seen actual service.

The Missouri men in Laredo are now becoming accustomed to the Rio Grande climate and, despite all reports to the contrary, are beginning to like it.

In the first place, while people in Chicago and St. Louis are sweltering during the night, every Laredo night is cool and some are actually chilly. The men have not had a hot night since they have been here. And in the day time, while the sun is undoubtedly hot, there is usually a breeze. A few minutes in the shade cools off the tired soldier, and while on the subject of the weather let us not forget old Bromidus J. Humidity. Any St. Louisan with any sense of humor at all must have frequently wished that Webster in compiling his batting order, had overlooked this Johnny-Junmp-Up word. Pullman smoking rooms know it well. Summer resort denizens in every part of the country are told at least once a day: "St. Louis is not so hot, you know, but it is the fearful humidity." Wherever Mound City men and women want to display their erudition, they bring "humidity" into play.

There is very little of the terrible stuff on the Rio Grande. More of it would be good for crops, flowers and forests, but would be bad for men under the brand of sunshine they have here.

The men are hardening. All through with typhoid injections and their attendant fevers, through with most of the ditch digging and heavy work incidental to making permanent camps, they are gradually settling down to the routine of soldiering, which means stiff morning drills and light fatigue work in the hot afternoons.

In the rush of the national guard to the border, the regular army was more or less overlooked. But it is still "on the job."

People at home seem to take their stay here as a matter of course, but it should be remembered that though their stay in the service is not dependent on the present crisis, they are not enjoying the comforts that are ordinarily theirs.

For example, take the two Batteries E and J of the Third Field Artillery. They have been stationed at Fort Myer—a stone's throw from Washington, D. C. There they lived in barracks that were roomy and comfortable.

In the summer time they "hiked" up to Tobyhanna, Penn., about 300 miles away, to train and instruct militia batteries of the Eastern States.

On winter evenings the city of Washington was at their doors. In the summer they camped and liked the chanke, and its new scenery and faces.

Since May they have been here in Laredo and, while your "regular" indulges little in "kicking," there isn't a man that wouldn't be as glad to be back at Fort Myer as your St. Louis guardsman longs for a glance at Grand and Olive.

One of the main benefits that Missouri artillery men have gained from their stay with these batteries has been a realization of the value of discipline. The idea isn't that a man will be punished for infractions of the code, but that there is a certain amount of work that must be done. If everybody jumps in and starts to work, the job will be soon finished and all the men will have more time to themselves, but if all jump in and shirk instead of work, the men will be working and shirking all day long—and it is almost as much trouble to shirk as it is to work.

The Missouri men are returning to their own camps better workers and very much better equipped to fight—if they have to.

As there are only two regular batteries of field artillery in Laredo (the other red hat cords being worn by coast artillery men) there has been some talk of having A Battery camp with the regulars to form a batalion.

This would be a compliment to the St. Louis battery, and would give that body a chance for such a training as they could never obtain eleswhere.

The regular batteries recently removed their camp from Fort McIntosh to Goat Hill, on the other side of town. Their old tents had wooden frames and floors and were surrounded by grass and trees and covered with vines.

To cut down this foliage and to move to a barren stretch of sand was a heartbreaking move, and the men felt keenly on the subject; but "orders are orders," and with hardly an audible grumble the tents were lined up on Goat Hill. The castor beans from the old trees were planted around them, and in about a week the first tiny sprigs of the trees poked their heads out of the freshly irrigated ground and soon the tents will be again covered with shade. Before that time, new orders may break up their camp again, but if they stay on the hill they will be comfortable in time, which is better than not planting seeds because you may move.

The tents, when they were moved, were lifted on to large army motor trucks, and overlapping the machines, they sailed through town like a cruise of the New York Yacht Club.

Startled Mexicans would stand in amazement to see wooden houses 20x20 feet and perhaps 15 or 20 feet high, advancing through their sleepy streets, with a soldier perched on the ridge poles to poke aside the telephone wires.

Wooden stables and mess halls, as long as 100 feet or more and 30 or 40 feet wide, were torn down and carried to the new camp in pieces and the whole outfit, tents, stables, mess halls, officers' quarters, guns, horses, men and supplies, were removed in two days and open for business with running water, shower baths, electric lights, hot meals, drills and parades.

The circus moves quickly, but it is not nailed down. No vines cover its big top and it does the same thing every day, but for surprise moving, take a look at the regular army and forever after hold thy peace.

Like a circus, the grounds they leave must be as spick and span as man can make them.

Missouri troops are now building permanent inclosed mess halls and embellishing their camp with tropical foliage.

I know that my retirement will make no difference in its cardinal principles, that it will always fight for progress and reform, never tolerate injustice or corruption, always fight demagogues of all parties, never belong to any party, always oppose privileged classes and public plunderers, never lack sympathy with the poor, always remain devoted to the public welfare, never be satisfied with merely printing news, always be drastically independent, never be afraid to attack wrong, whether by predatory plutocracy or predatory poverty.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

A Milkman's View.

Just a word to those who may blame the drivers for the condition now existing. A copy of the agreement which we are holding out for was mailed to each of the dairy companies on July 5. Now each boss could tell after reading the agreement whether our demands were unreasonable or exorbitant as they claim. If they found them to be as they say, why did not they offer us some kind of compromise, and ask to arbitrate the matter, like the gentlemen we presumed they were? instead of doing this, they absolutely ignored our agreement and did not even acknowledge receipt of it. This action alone draws the conclusion that their intentions were and are to break up our organization. If they had wished to come to a settlement with us they had all of July to arbitrate it; but since they refused and continue to refuse to even meet our representatives, I fail to see where we are to blame.

To you who have a hard time in obtaining your necessary supply, I suggest that you ask the dairy bosses why they did not hold their daily meetings in July, and we would have been still serving you with milk. Even if the companies do hold out for another week, there still would have been time to reach an agreement before Aug. 1. Then there would have been no strike and no lockout, no suffering babies, nor at least one widow.

RAY H. WEEK.

Flower Flag for Forest Park.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

While driving through Forest Park last evening I had a little idea come to me. Do you not think it would be appropriate, as well as beautiful, to have a United States flag made of small-leaf plants on the hillside of the rest station, facing the lake; I mean the station near the bird cage? I think it is a beautiful spot and would be an ideal place for our flag. I hope my suggestion will be considered.

ROLAND G. WEIS.

Appeal for French Hospitals.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

Will you kindly allow me to appeal for help for the many hundreds of hospitals in France that need more surgical dressings? America is giving to this work, but the length of the war and its terrible consequences make all that has been done seem like a drop in the bucket.

I have crossed the Atlantic 11 times since the war began, only to feel each time that I return here how much more all liberty-loving Americans would give if they could but conceive how France is battling for liberty.

The French section of the Surgical Dressings Committee needs at once, and for each week that the war lasts, 3000 yards of gauze, over and above what is coming from America. Dressings for wounded men are essential. Supplies here are growing scarce.

Please give $1 a month. It will buy gauze, and it will pay suffering women 80 cents a day to make the gauze into dressings. Send your contribution to Mrs. Mary Hatch Willard, international chairman, 255 Fifth avenue, New York, marked for the ouvroir (workroom) of the French section, or send in a registered letter to Mme. C. K. Austin, head of the French section, 118 rue de la Faisanderie, Paris.

Your contribution will be acknowledged, and every penny of it will go direct to relieve suffering that is beyond understanding unless one is on this invaded and blood-soaked soil.

BELLE ARMSTRONG WHITNEY,
Foreign Secretary, 55 Avenue d'Autin, Paris.

Getting Ice on Sunday.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

Failing in their efforts to have the Sunday ice wagons stopped, it seems as though the dealers have adopted another course—that of raising the price—in their attempt to eliminate any opposition they have in St. Louis.

It is an outrage and a shame to think that a resident of a city the size of St. Louis cannot purchase ice on Sunday. The Sunday iceman is as necessary during this hot weather as the drug store or other places where medical aid can be received, as there are thousands of people whose refrigrators will not hold a supply from Saturday until Monday.

Again, the little children and sick people, whose very life depends on this necessity, are deprived of it through the selfishness of a few who control the situation.

If we had the proper city officials here who had the welfare of the people—the poor class—at heart they would demand that this be stopped or the offenders leave the city.

Make the dealers furnish ice at a reasonable price, so that myself and 90 per cent of the people living in view of my flat can purchase enough to tide them over these hot Sundays.

AN UNDERSTUDY'S IMPUDENCE.

Lieutenant-Governor W. R. Painter in demanding the resignations of Police Commissioners S. B. McPheeters of St. Louis, and U. G. Crandall and J. I. McDonald of St. Joseph, may be only abusing a doubtful and temporary authority entrusted to him during the Governor's absence from the State.

Or he may be acting in accordance with a plan which Gov. Major has approved, but whose execution he has sidestepped. Or, as he has done heretofore in the matter of pardons, he may be acting independently in ripping up the Police Board of one city and in collusion with the Governor in ripping up that of the other.

Whatever the facts, he is guilty of a gross and stupid impropriety. It is inevitable that his impertinence as to St. Louis should be associated with intrigues looking to the nomination and election of a Mayor next spring. A man who has just suffered his humiliating defeat in a run for Governor could not show such presumption as he showed toward St. Joseph without subjecting his course to the worst possible construction.

The last vestige of resistance to home-rule police direction should be ended by this outrage. For a Governor, whose responsibility is understood when he is chosen, to make political pawns of the metropolitan departments of the State, is a disgrace to good government.

But all bounds of tolerance are exceeded when a mere understudy, strutting for a moment in the chief role for which his unworthiness has just been affirmed by the people, dares so impudent an exhibition as an attempt to use its opportunities for petty personal and political purposes.

A JITNEY TARIFF COMMISSION.

Howard H. Gross, president of the Tariff Commission League, wires the Post-Dispatch from Chicago protesting against an amendment to the pending tariff board bill cutting the proposed salaries of the commissioners from $10,000 to $7500. He pertinently calls attention to the fact that the salaries of the new Rural Credit Commission were fixed at $10,000 and suggests that pay at the reduced figure would make it difficult to obtain the services of the sort of men who ought to be on the board.

What is demanded is a "high-grade commission and not a jitney makeshift," he says, which seems to cover about all that might be said on the subject. We agree with him.

PUBLIC RIGHT IN PRIVATE PROPERTY.

It is a principle of law and equity—meaning thereby equal justice to all—that no individual may do anything with his private property which shall injure or even endanger others. This may be occasioned by excessive use—such as the driving of an automobile at reckless speed through crowded city streets, the discharge of firearms, the overcrowding of a tenement, or hundreds of other things. Or, it may be brought about entirely by disuse. No group of men can buy up all the wheat in the country, for instance, lock it up, and refuse to sell any of it except at a certain price. The wheat undoubtedly is private property, but every reader knows what would happen to it and to the men who attempted the corner.

Next, there is the well-established right known as the law of eminent domain. It justifies the right of seizure of private property at a fair compensation for the public good, as, for instance, when a railroad finds it necessary to lay its tracks right through a farmer's barn.

And now we come to the railroad strike question. All the steam roads are in the possession of a certain small percentage of all the people in the United States. In these days they are as necessary as wheat to the welfare of millions of our people, if not all. There is no group of men, either workers or owners of the property, who shall say with finality that not a wheel shall turn nor a train move on any of these tracks. Congress has ample power to provide the remedy.

If the United States can keep out of wars and learn to settle strikes we shall, indeed, be a great people—a leader of nations.

CURIOUS WEATHER FACTS.

In the summer of 1914, says the Schlesische Zeitung of Breslau, we enjoyed a cool and comparatively rainless season, while the Western Hemisphere languished under suffocating heat.

Last year the European summer set in early and continued hot and dry, while the other side of the globe shivered in protracted cold and a never-ending downpour.

This year, after one of the eight warmest winters European history knows, summer was delayed until June and July, and when the sun began showing an excess of heat, Europe began to be deluged with unwonted rains, to an extent that in all of June we have had only three rainless days, and in July four, while America has sweltered in an unbroken spell of phenomenal heat.

In Europe the crops have been ruined by too much rain; in America—we surmise, we have not learned—they have been burned to some notable extent.

The earth is round. While one side is shivering with cold, the other is transpiring with excessive calorics. Is it not wonderful, though, that such a palpable series of phenomena should escape the reach of our scientists?

Neither sunspots nor the continuous detonations in the war belt, says the writer, are competent to explain, as the selfsame conditions existed in the years 1915 and 1916, with totally varying results.

The paper discusses interestingly the outlook for the European food supply for winter. "We shall be compelled," it says, "to look to German science to remedy the nearly total and universal European crop deficiency this autumn and winter. Some means will be found to stretch the shortage. We have no fear of it, but an abiding faith that Germany will manage to remedy the defect of nature. Have we not lived through nearly as great distress? And we can do it again."

This contradiction of continuous German claims as to abundant harvests is most interesting.

DIRECT NOMINATIONS AND JUDGE LAMM.

We hope that Judge Lamm, in emerging a victor from the primaries, emerged also with a better opinion of the direct nomination principle.

He is the nominee of a minority of the voters of his party—a very respectable minority let it be admitted—but no majority vote in a convention, not even a unanimous convention vote, could make him the first choice of any greater number of the plain people.

One of Mr. Lamm's criticisms of the system was that it encouraged a two-faced attitude on the part of candidates, who were tempted to take one side of an issue in sections where that side was popular and the other side wherever it might mean votes. But that criticism appears in a different light now from that back in the campaign, when all sorts of reports were in circulation and misrepresentation seemed to have an influence on no small number of voters and unfairness and deception seemed to be practiced with success.

It has all worked out pretty satisfactorily. The very publicity inseparable from the direct nomination system is a corrective of its greatest possibilities of harm. Who, indeed, aside from some of the defeated candidates and their uncompromising supporters, would change the primary results as to the chief offices, now that we have got used to them and can see on analysis how well what ought to be is represented by what is? Regular elections would be abolished by the same argument on which Judge Lamm urged the primary's abolition.

But if Mr. Lamm emerged from the primary with a strong conviction that the direct nomination may wisely be supplemented with the short ballot and, in the event of his election, will work for the accomplishment of that great reform, he is in a way to perform a distinguished service for the State. On two fairly well balanced tickets, the only primary results conspicuously unsatisfactory are those affecting those offices of "low visibility" to which neither the voters nor convention delegates give proper attention in selecting nominees.

Increasing evidences of sound judgment are being recorded in primaries throughout the country. No assembly of leaders and delegates is wiser than the whole people.

Mr. Hughes' denunciation of centralization is not expected to interfere with his nationalizing of woman suffrage, which has always been a matter of state legislation.

MILK DEALERS' STRANGE PROPOSITION.

The milk dealers' proposition to the union, at the Warwick Hotel yesterday, that the union select a committee to confer on the settlement of the strike, "no member of which has been engaged in violence or who was a member of the original wage-scale committee," was equivalent to an assumption that the union officials, who were there, ready to confer, had been guilty of violence. It also assumed that the men don't know what wages they want, in its demand that the original wage scale committee be debarred from the negotiations.

It might have been countered with a proposition that the dealers should select a committee no member of which ever treated his employes unfairly and no member of which had had anything to do with fixing wages.

This was not the way the Cleveland milk drivers' strike was settled. It shows that the dairymen are still in an unreasonable frame of mind. If the dairy owners will consent to a conference with the union, as such, accepting its representatives in good faith, just as the dairy owners expect to be accepted by the union, matters can proceed. That would be both fair and businesslike.

SNAKEBITES AND THEIR CURE.

Fatalities from snakebite are increasing at an alarming rate in the United States, declares that eminent zoological authority, Prof. Ditmars of the Bronx. A few years ago, says the professor, you rarely heard of snakebite killing anybody—not oftener than once in a couple of years or so. Whereas the present mortality is as high as three or four per annum.

What is the cause? We opine that just as many, and maybe more, people were bitten in the good old days, but that there was more of the reliable old-fashioned remedy available. Is not the increase in the death rate commensurate with the decrease of the visible supply of the perfectly efficacious medicine? Many places where formerly recourse could be had readily to first aid have been swept to utter aridity by the dry wave.

In Kansas, Maine, Iowa and many commonwealths, notably in the South, which were once well equipped to combat the onslaughts of reptilia, the victims of snakes and prohibition are now abandoned to destitution, desiccation, desuetude, doctors and death. In these desert wastes, as in Arkansas, Nebraska and even parts of Illinois and Missouri, men no longer court snakebites as in auld lang syne, but the snake is given an undue advantage and encouraged by results, with what terrible consequences we perceive.

We are informed that grape juice, nor the succulent extract of loganberry, alas! none of the cheering, invigorating, pure, wholesome, nutritious and delicious soft beverages we read so much about, contains the curative essential to withstand, or requisite punch to defy, the insidious serpent. As a condition precedent to precipitating drouth upon a given territory, it ought to be made incumbent on the Prohibitionists to rid it of snakes as the good Saint Patrick ridded Ireland.

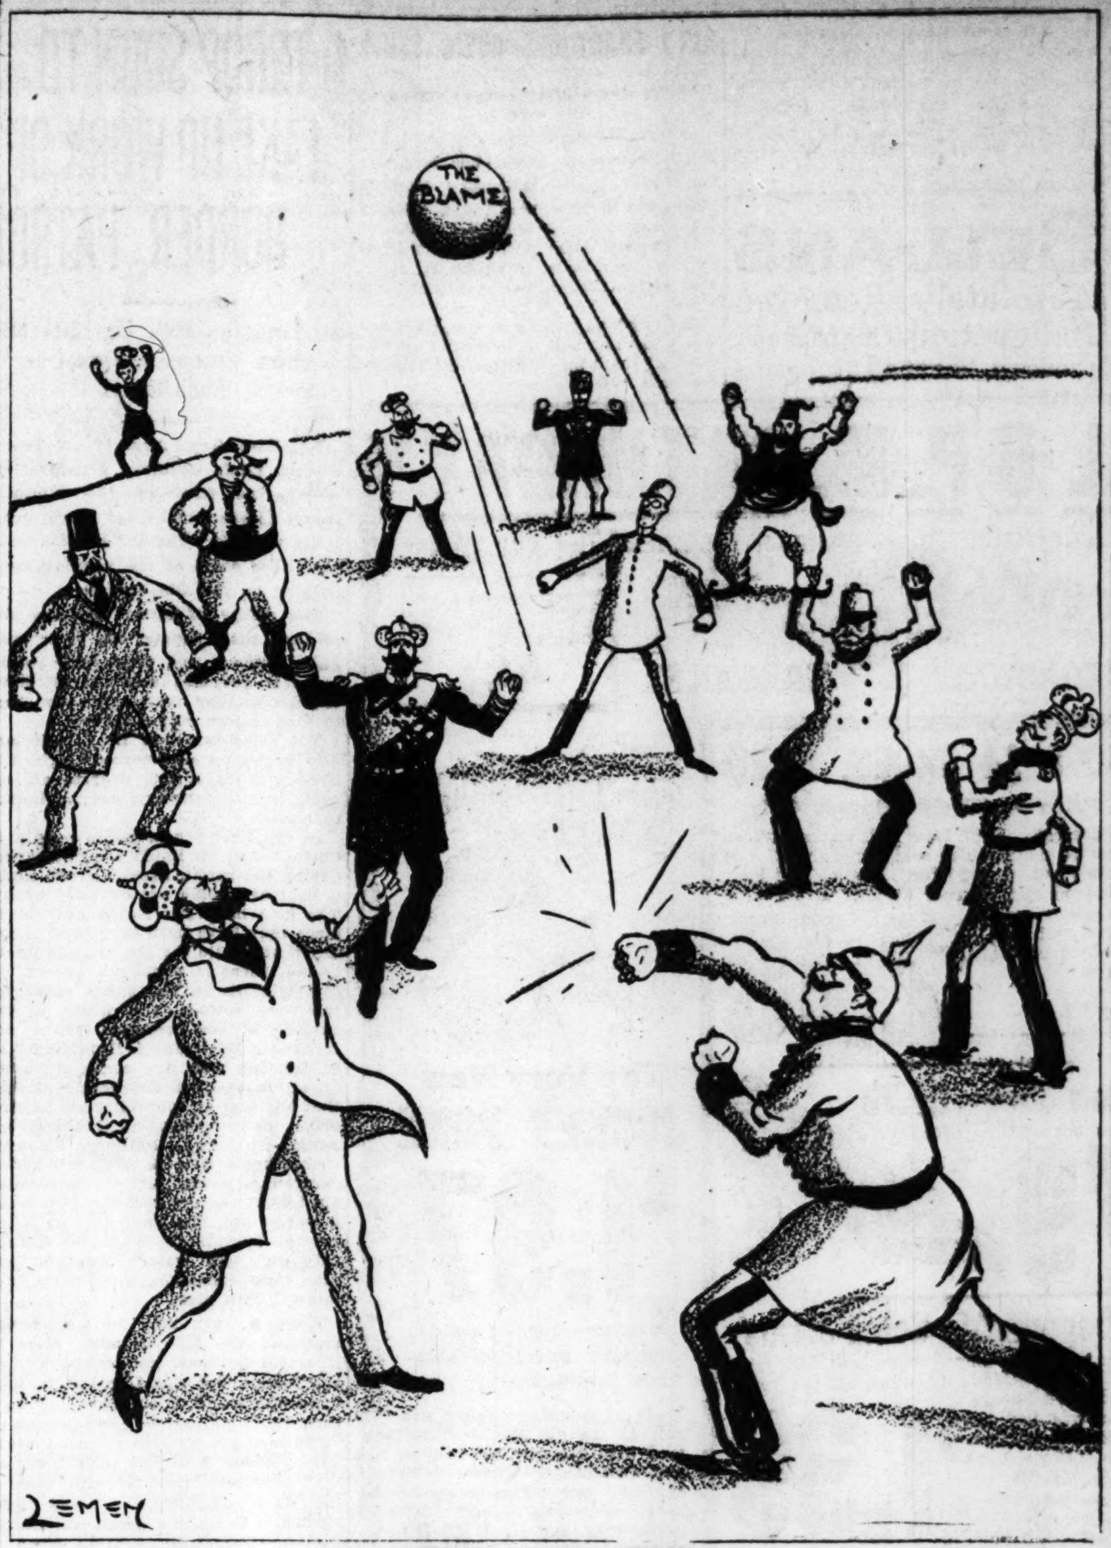
NEW DEAL IN STATE POLITICS.

The falling off of more than 40,000 in the Democratic primary vote this year and the increase of more than 40,000 in the Republican, as compared with 1912, present none of the aspects of a vote of confidence in the personnel of the State administration during the last four years. The majority party enters the campaign with a sad weight in the record made at Jefferson City.

Its support in the election will depend very largely on the conviction of the voters as to how much change is promised by the new ticket. And, explicit as this year's candidates are in pledges of something different, doubtless many voters will conclude that the way to make sure of the greatest possible difference will be to support Republican State candidates



AFTER THE WAR.

JUST A MINUTE

Written for the POST-DISPATCH
by Clark McAdams

SOME DEMOCRATIC IFS.

If the farmers of the United States realized that the farm credits act recently passed by Congress delivers them from the clutches of the farm loan sharks, it would not be safe for a Republican orator to address a rural audience in the present campaign without having the Sheriff on hand to protect him.

If all the people who know why the Republicans could not put a law against child labor through Congress, and why the Democrats could and did do it, expressed their sentiments at the polls next November, there would be nothing left of the Republican representation in Congress next winter but the holding-over Senators.

If the United States had declared war upon Germany for sinking the Lusitania, it would have shown itself incapable of all the finer concepts of civilization, and would have lost in war the great principle of international law which it won by keeping its head.

If the United States had recognized Huerta, in the face of the certainty that Mexico was not going to suffer itself to be ruled by that assassin, it would have plunged that country into a mess from which its prior folly would have left it powerless ever to extricate her.

If Mr. Hughes had been President, Mr. Cannon Speaker of the House, and Mr. Penrose boss of the Senate, the currency act, which busted the Money Trust and made panics impossible, would not have been passed.

If the people who have benefited by the income tax law and other equalizing acts of the Wilson Congress all pitched something into the Democratic campaign fund, as the beneficiaries of Republican legislation do, the tariff barons would have to dig deeper to win this election than they ever digged in their lives.

If the German-Americans are to vote against Mr. Wilson because he has been for the allies, and the British-Americans are to vote against him because he has let the German-Americans bluff him, the Democrats would much rather join with all the people between those two extreme groups and show them that this is neither Germany nor England.

If Mr. Hughes had been President the last three years, he would probably have tried much as Mr. Wilson has tried to keep this last of the great civilized powers out of the war, and Mr. Wilon would have been man enough to have held up his hands.

If the Republicans had provided the country with an adequate army and navy in the more than fifty years through which they almost continuously controlled the government, we would have them now and would not be trying to get them in sixty days.

If times were ever better than they are in this country now, if there was ever a more general distribution of prosperity, or if the United States ever commanded the respect of civilized nations to a greater degree than we command it now, WHEN WAS IT?

Someone has figured out that at the rate the Russians have progressed since they began their present offensive in June they will have reached the German border in nine months. The same man is also figuring on the arrival of the allies at the German border, based on their rate of progess since they began their drive, but for the time being he is out of figures.

TO A CANARY

(After Burns.)

Poor creature, doth thy golden breast
Throb like some prisoner's oppressed—
Though freedom thy young wings
once blessed,
That's over now—
The cage scarce leaves thee room to rest
Thy feath'ry brow.

Thy kingdoms were the skyey seas,
The flowered meads, the shelt'ring trees
Holding the nestling mysteries
Of thy wee home—
And all thy pagan liberties
To thieve and roam!

No longer will thy woodland lay
Herald the first faint peep of day—
Poor captive soul! the tortured prey—
Of man's delights—
Who, when he trapped thee, took away
God-given rights!

But purposed woes and acts unkind,
Are not alone to thee confined—
There's many a son of shrewd mankind
Devising snares
For catching guileless humankind,
All unawares!

None less the plight of ruined sire,
The victim of revengeful ire—
Or maidenhood dragged in the mire
Of cruel shame;
Who thought some bestial's warm desire
Was Love's true flame!

But O, sweet bird, if earth's worst wrong
Should wound me with its ruthless thong—
Or joys unnumbered madly throng
My soul like wine;
I hope my heart will sing a song
As sweet as thine.

IRVIN MATTICK.

It is not the fault of the Police Commissioners of St. Louis and St. Joseph that Mr. Painter ran last in a field of seven men seeking the Democratic nomination for Governor in the recent State primary. Mr. Painter caused that altogether desirable result by taking over the powers of the Governor for a few days last summer and trying to give us a cheap imitation of the Hon. Cole Blease in his celebrated performance of "Turning the Animals Loose on Society."

George Moore has taken up arms against foreign expressions in English fiction. He has just thumped William DeMorgan, who is fond of at least one French phrase to a page, and is out after the whole English school of novelists. More power to his big stick. We trust that by the time he gets done with them they will all be hors de combat.

If Mr. Hughes will specifically say that we should have protected the Hearst ranch in Mexico, he can have the support of the Hearst papers.

Col. Roosevelt would better write a couple of good campaign speeches and send them out to Mr. Hughes.

ANSWERS TO QUERIES

BEAUTY CULTURE.

READER.—See a surgeon der ogist about removing cowlick.

PLEEZE.—A moist pack, whether medicated or not, will cause a peeling of the outer layer of the skin without injury. Unmedicated, it is the least harmful method to use.

HEALTH HINTS.

ANXIOUS.—Phone or see Y. W. C. A. about free dispensary for women.

T. B. S.—(Correction.) Free [illegible] (including dental) should have read Washington University, St. Louis University.

CECILE.—If you have dropsy you should know it by some other symptoms than feet blister. In dropsy and some other conditions you get this symptom.

MRS. JONES.—Gelatin does not exist as such in the animal tissues, but is formed by the action of boiling water on connective tissues, cartilage, ligaments and tendons, as well as on skin, horn, fish scales, etc. The coarse form of gelatin from hoofs, hides, etc., is called "glue;" that from skin and finer membranes is called size, and the purest gelatin, from the air bladders and other membranes of fish is called isinglass. Does not build up tissues; supposed to be harmless.

M. D.—Your kindly letter about "Health Hints" is before us. Many wise men have been vexed by statements in "H. H." The "health" journals and the "medical" journals are both edited by physicians who think they know what they are writing about, and both are freely quoted in the daily press. It is regretted that physicians, lawyers and other professional men are constantly disagreeing—it is human nature. "Two of a trade," etc. Rest easy, doctor, however, about "H. H." There is no record of even a single fatality having resulted from its publication. What it has published has been largely statements of honest persons and capable medical writers. The answerer is not responsible for medical "authority." He likes all the doctors. They are mostly good men, doing their best. He would be pleased if "H. H." and all the rest of the column were to be abolished. There is much pleasanter work. (What think you of Bro. Hirshberg and Bro. Evans?)

HOUSEHOLD HELPS.

JOCKEY CLUB.—(1) Collect several ends of cakes of soap and shred them in small pieces. Tie these in a piece of calico tightly, and dip into boiling water for two minutes. Then place in cold water for a few seconds and knead the soap until it forms a soft ball, when it should be placed aside to cool. In about an hour take the calico off and the soap ball will be ready for use and will be found admirable for washing delicate lace and chiffon. (2) When a cake of soap is worn nearly thin enough to break, stick it to the new cake by putting both in quite warm water, then press firmly together. When cold it will be one solid cake. This does away with small pieces of soap and there is no waste. (Cannas bloom once in a season; they do not bloom after seed forms.

LAW POINTS.

M. B.—You are not liable for rent under lease your husband intends to break, not having signed it.

J. McC.—Under facts you state, you would not be successful in getting damages for loss sustained by leaking roof.

CONSTANT.—You would hardly succeed in suit against your husband for breaking the dishes you bought with your own money.

INTERESTED.—Another may be substituted executor by a codicil to present will; or by making another will and revoking the former one, which can then be destroyed.

X. Y. Z.—We know of no city ordinance covering your case. If wires are dangerous, see Department of Public Utilities, or have owner notify corporation to remove the same.

SURE SAFE.—If valid in other respects, the will as to amounts to legatees and funeral would also be; provided the same does not conflict with by-laws of the lodge, who would pay out sums as directed.

JUSTICE.—As you received the paper, a Court might require you to pay for it. You should have refused to receive it from the carrier or the postoffice. Of course, it is unjust that you should pay for what you did not order.

J. B.—Suicide is no defense, even in accident insurance, unless company can prove insured contemplated such at time he made application for the same. It being a Missouri contract, such event happening outside of State doesn't matter.

W. S. H.—If corporation is dissolved, statute requires that the president or secretary shall file an affidavit with Secretary of State to that effect; failure to do so subjects company or officers thereof to penalty of not less than $100 or more than $1000, recoverable by civil action. Fee for filing affidavit, $1.

CONSTANT.—Parents of minor could not be held for minor's business debts and senior partner (as you call him) would be liable for all the debts. We may add that a minor may, as a general rule, disaffirm any contract, but until he does the contract (or debt) may subsist, capable of being made absolute by affirmance, or void by disaffirmance on attaining majority.

M. A.—1. The conveyance is best made by both transferring to a straw party who deeds to the spouse to whom it is to be held. 2. As to real property of husband and wife which creates a "tenancy by the entirety," to place title only in wife, follow as in answer to question 1, as a deed alone by him would pass no title, neither would one alone by wife pass any in property so held.

F. R.—While the livestock may be exempt, it would depend upon value of your household furniture and other personal property; if attached, and after appraisement is made, head of family may select $400 of appraised property and besides may retain necessary wearing apparel, Bibles, school books and family pictures. As we know nothing of the terms of lease, agreements and conditions, cannot say what lessor can do, or his rights thereunder as to the farm rent.

R. H.—If a private street, unless property holder signs and binds himself, he cannot be made to pay for making of street; in certain highly restricted private places trustees have certain powers in that respect and may bind property owners for certain improvements. If a public street bill for improving originates with Board of Public Service, and if passed, according to city charter, it is valid and special tax, for such is assessed against property benefited, and your objection may do no good; nor would your signature be required in such case.

C. K.—1. As to husband's money, whether he should purchase home in his name or in both himself and wife, is a matter for him to decide. 2. While you could not hold her to the agreement, you are not required to support her children by a former marriage. Whether a will is advisable as to your estate, that depends upon circumstances; if none, the one taking charge must furnish bond in double amount; then again, administration may not be necessary, also depending upon what you leave. 4. Report matter to the Police Department. 5. If policy permits substituting her children as beneficiaries, there isn't anything you can do; neither can you hold wife for premiums you voluntarily paid.

A Black Ally

Story of how the scheme of an old darky retainer won a sweetheart for the young fellow who by rights should have had the girl.

By Harold Carter.

UNCLE JOSH looked feelingly at Young Mr. Burroughs. He liked the young fellow, who always tipped him handsomely, and he disliked James Loft, who seemed to hold the mortgage on Miss Esther's heart at present, with every likelihood of foreclosing.

"I guess Miss Esther ain't blind," said Uncle Josh. "You'll win that gel if you keep a-trying, Young Mr. Burroughs," said Uncle Josh, still feelingly.

Young Mr. Burroughs, though he had this information thrust upon him unsolicited, did not grow angry. He pressed Uncle Josh's hand and pressed a big dollar into it at the same time.

Miss Esther was the sole owner of the plantation. Many of the neighboring young men had come courting her, only to ride sadly homeward. Miss Esther was only 21, and not disposed to marry yet awhile. Still, she had shown a decided preference for Young Mr. Burroughs, until James Loft came along.

Loft was the manager of the big factory that had established itself at Molyneux, eight miles away, and with his city airs and graces he had made a decided impression on Miss Esther. They rode together a good deal; they were out riding that morning when Young Mr. Burroughs stood disconsolately in the doorway of the empty house.

Uncle Josh did not like James Loft. It was not because he did not tip him, though that might have been one of the reasons. He simply sensed that there was a yellow streak in James Loft's nature. It was acting on this impression that he had given him Devil to ride that morning.

"If you'd like to wait, sah, I guess Miss Esther'll be back soon," said the darky.

Esther Comes Up Galloping.

HARDLY had he spoken when a singular apparition was seen careering across the countryside. As it drew nearer it revealed itself to be Devil, scampering wildly homeward, while on its back, his arms about the big horse's neck in loving embrace, was James Loft himself. And as the horse reached the stable Loft, dislodged by the animal's last spurt of joy, tumbled in a heap at Uncle Josh's feet.

"Dear me, sah, I hope you ain't hurt, sah," said Uncle Josh, assisting him to his feet, while Young Mr. Burroughs broke into helpless laughter.

"Curse you and your horse!" said Mr. Loft, who presented a sorry aspect, having fallen into a muddy puddle, "May I ask what you are laughing at?" he continued fiercely, addressing Young Mr. Burroughs.

"At you, sir," gasped Young Mr. Burroughs, enjoying his rival's downfall.

Esther came galloping up. She leaped to the ground. She took in the situation, and her eyes blazed with fury.

"Uncle Josh, you ought to be ashamed of yourself for giving Mr. Loft Devil to ride," she said. "And as for you, Mr. Burroughs," she added, turning to the young man, "please understand that I do not permit my guests to be insulted."

She gave her arm to the discomfited Mr. Loft, and escorted him inside the house, leaving Young Mr. Burroughs standing like a fool.

"Never mind, sah! You'll win that gel yet," said Uncle Josh feebly.

Young Mr. Burroughs went home. He had loved Miss Esther for years; in fact, when they were children they had considered themselves betrothed. And now this interloper, this man with the yellow streak, this James Loft had paraded his airs before the impressionable girl and won her.

Uncle Josh's Plan.

FOR they were as good as engaged. The countryside said so. Young Mr. Burroughs made inquiries about Loft, but he could learn nothing against him. And Esther loved him. Nobody who saw them together could doubt that. She loved him so well that his errors in horsemanship did not seem ridiculous to her. Sometimes Young Mr. Burroughs met them riding together and raised his hat, to receive the stiffest of bows from Miss Esther and a cold cut from Loft.

One evening Uncle Josh came to Young Mr. Burroughs.

"I done fix that Loft feller," he remarked.

"What do you mean?" demanded Young Mr. Burroughs.

"You come to the stable at 7 tomorrow morning, sah," responded Uncle Josh cryptically.

Young Mr. Burroughs went to the stable, which was situated at the end of the paddock, a good half mile from Miss Esther's house. It was early morning, and the remembrance of the days when he had come just that way, to ride with his sweetheart was strong upon him.

As he approached the stable suddenly he heard a horse scream with terror. He went up to the door. There stood Devil, tied fast in his stall, and James Loft thrashing the life out of him with a riding whip.

The big horse reared and plunged helplessly, and the whip, wielded with all Loft's strength, struck it cruelly across the legs and shoulders.

Infuriated at the sight, young Mr. Burroughs snatched the whip from Loft's hand. Loft turned upon him savagely. "You drop that whip!" he shouted.

Young Mr. Burroughs slashed Mr. Loft across the legs. Loft closed with him. They wrestled to and fro. Loft was more than the young man's physical match, but young Mr. Burroughs was goaded to madness by the cruel onslaught upon Devil, who now stood shivering in his stall.

The Scheme Works.

SUDDENLY they were aware that Esther and Uncle Josh stood in the doorway. Esther made a startled movement forward, her eyes lit upon Devil, and she turned furiously upon the two.

"Who has done this?" she demanded.

"I found this fellow beating a tied horse, and I took the whip away from him," young Mr. Burroughs panted.

"Is that true?" cried Esther furiously.

"I tried to tame him," muttered Loft. "I'm not going to have a wild horse round my property."

"What!" cried the girl in amazed scorn. "Your property? Bo! Go! And don't let me ever see your face again!"

James Loft stared at her in dismay. "Esther!" he began.

"Go, I tell you!" shouted the girl.

And Mr. Loft went. And then—well, young Mr. Burroughs took the sobbing girl in his arms and—O, yes, kissed her. It sounds too sudden, but that is the way those things are done."

"Uncle Josh, you old black devil," said young Mr. Burroughs a little later, pressing a $5 bill into the darky's hand, "what does it mean?"

"Why, boss, I guess Miss Esther wouldn't stand for a man what whipped a tied horse," said Uncle Josh. "So I jest told him that Miss Esther didn't like a man what let a horse beat him, and I said he'd better give him a beating and then ride him. That's all. Thankee, boss."

Remains of Giant Men.

CANAL workers at Valentine, Neb., recently uncovered, 10 feet beneath the surface, the skeleton of an Indian warrior. The overlying strata indicated that the bones had been inanimate for several hundred years.

On July 13 Prof. Skinner of the American Indian Museum, excavating the mound at Tioga Point, near Sayre, Pa., uncovered the bones of 68 men, which he estimates had been buried at least 700 or 800 years. The average height indicated by the skeletons was seven feet, but many were taller. Evidence of the gigantic size of these men was seen in huge axes found beside the bones.—The Christian Herald.

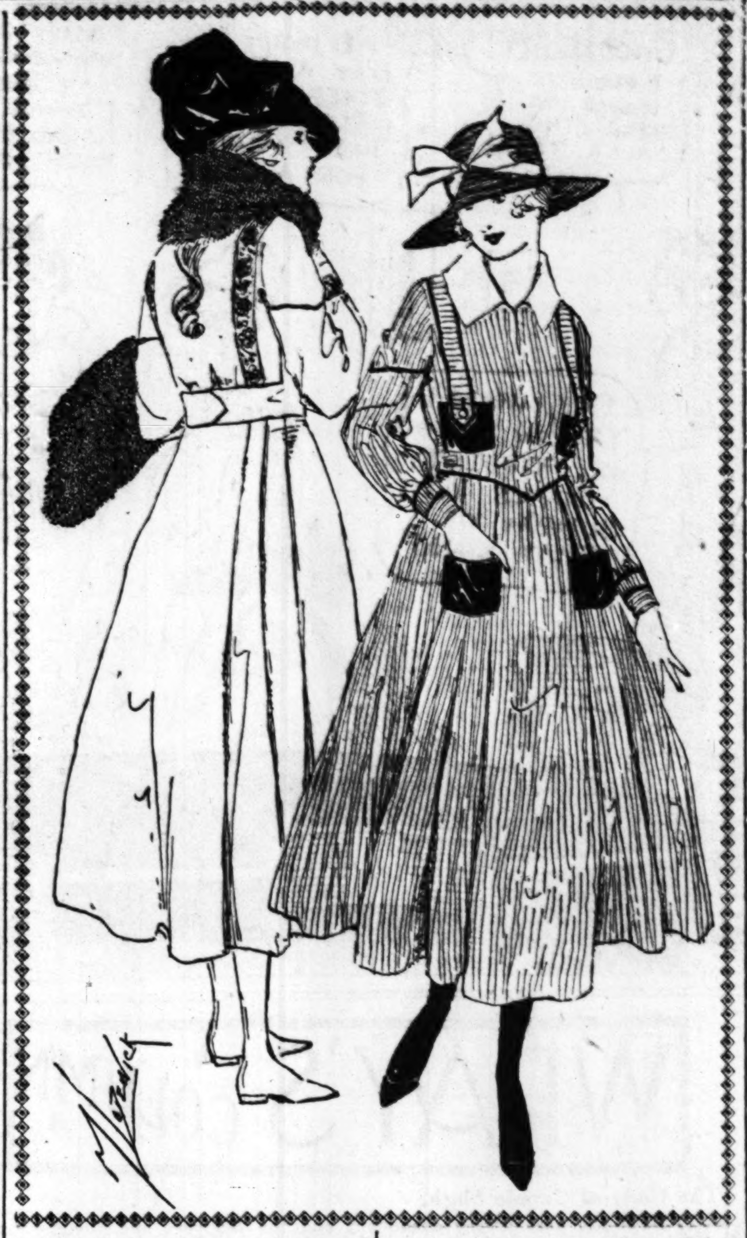
Proper Frocks for Young Girls

Material Interest in Designing Their Clothes Is No Longer Feared as Promoting Vanity, but Recognized as Encouraging Self-Confidence, Poise and Comfort.



A HEALTHFUL reaction has taken place on the part of mothers from the former fear that too evident interest in their young daughters' clothes would result in inordinate vanity. When a slim, awkwardly built girl, or a girl built perhaps too corpulently, knows that her clothes are conscientiously planned in regard first to becomingness, then style and appropriateness for the occasion of wearing, she cannot but express a feeling of self-confidence with a graceful poise and carriage, which come when the body reacts to the content of the mind.

The apparel of school girls and college girls differ according to their respective ages, the latter demanding a bit more dignity and richness.

The frock here shown can be seen at a glance to incorporate the necessary qualities for college girl's frock. At the right is suggested dark blue serge and black satin for its development, with an unusually attractive effect. Over the shoulders of the plain bodice, straps piped with satin extend to the black satin pockets, and button on to them for safety. In the back they disappear under a belt formed by an extension of the front portion of the bodice. The effect of the waist being slightly gathered in back above this belt is especially pretty. Sleeves with a cap piped in black are gathered into a cuff strapped at the top and piped to repeat the width of the strap over the shoulders.

The girlish collar rolls away from a slit at the front, and may be of serge with an overlay of organdy, or of white broadcloth or white silk. The skirt shows four groups of plaits, the two at the front being held by pockets of black satin like the ones on the bodice.

At the left this design offers to the shoulder straps the ability to characterize the frock with colored worsted embroidery. This is something which a young girl would take pleasure in working on herself. Done in a variety of colors, such as yellow, green, maroon and brick, it could be used on any color of serge or other woolen goods, though dark blue is usually preferred for practical school frocks. The pockets may be finished with a blanket stitch in one of the colors used in the embroidered design, and the result will be well worth the time any young girl would spend in so aiding to make this dress.

Ned and Tabby

Sandman story of how a smart dog played a trick on a cat in order to get a nice meat pie for his supper.

By Mrs. F. A. Walker.

TABBY was the house cat and Ned the dog, and they were very good friends up to the time I am going to tell you about.

One day the house was very still. Cook had gone to her room for a nap and Tabby was asleep in front of the kitchen stove.

Ned had been asleep behind the stove and a fly had buzzed about his head and finally lighted on his nose in the most aggravating manner, and Ned sprang up to catch it.

Awey flew the fly and Ned after it, right into the pantry, and lighted on the edge of the lowest shelf.

Ned lifted his head to snap at the fly, and that was when and where all the trouble started.

Ned smelled something that pleased him and he sniffed again; it was the pie that stood near the edge of the shelf.

"Smells like meat. I shouldn't wonder a bit if it were a nice, juicy meat pie, and maybe there is a bone in it, too," said Ned.

He stood looking at the pie for a minute and then he looked out in the kitchen at the sleeping tabby.

Ned trotted out to her and gave her a poke with his nose. "Come in the pantry," he said softly. "I want to ask you something."

TABBY followed, her ears sticking up and her eyes wide open. "What is it?" asked Ned.

"What is what?" asked Tabby, looking up and stretching her neck toward the shelf.

"That pie," said Ned. "I think it is a chicken pie. What do you think it is?"

"Chicken," repeated Tabby, licking her mouth and swinging her tail. "I'll take a sniff and see."

Tabby put her front paws on the shelf and stood on her hind legs tiptoes and gave a long, hard sniff.

"It might be meat," she said. "I can't be quite sure it is chicken without looking inside."

"It might be fish," said Ned. "You like fish, don't you, Tabby? But whether it is a fish pie or a chicken pie, it does not interest me. I don't care for either, but I knew you did, and so I told you. I would like to know, just for the sake of knowing if I was right. I guess chicken, and if it is meat I lose and you win the guess."

"I'll soon find out," said Tabby, springing up on the shelf beside the pie. She poked her nose in the opening where the pie had been cut, and then someone came in the kitchen and Ned ran out and crawled behind the stove and pretended to be asleep.

With the opening of the door puss pulled her head out of the pie and jumped, and over went the dish, pie and all, on the floor with a crash that brought cook to the pantry door in a hurry.

Puss dodged the broom cook swung at her as she ran for the outside door. "You bad cat, you have spoiled the nice meat pie. It is only fit for Ned to eat now."

COOK gathered up the broken pie and put it in Ned's dish outside the door, and while he was eating it Puss crept alongside of the house toward him.

"I believe you did that on purpose to get me to tip it over," said Puss. "You knew all the time it was meat, and now I shall have to go without my supper, while you feast on meat pie. You are a mean trickster, that is what you are, Mr. Ned."

"Anyway, you won the guess," said Ned, looking out of the corner of his eye at Tabby. "You said it might be meat and it was, so I lost, you see."

"I don't see it at all," said Tabby. "I shall lose my supper and maybe my breakfast unless cook forgets about the pie by morning, and as for you, you are no longer a friend of mine," said Tabby, as she walked away, swinging her tail in an angry fashion.

"Some folks are never satisfied," said Ned. "She won the guess and she wanted the pie, too. I think she is very unreasonable."

Clothes of Paper.

JAPANESE and Russian soldiers are said to be wearing clothes made of paper manufactured from mulberry bark. A thin layer of silk wadding is quilted between two sheets of paper. The fabric is said to be tough, yet soft, and strong enough to hold buttons sewed on in the ordinary way.

Germany is said to be using paper with good success in mail bags and in soldiers' knapsacks. It is probable that many new uses of paper will develop as a result of the exigencies of war.

Just a Wife (Her Diary)

Chapters From a Bride's Life-Story.

Edited by Janet Trevor.

CHAPTER XXXIX.

SEPT. 11.—It's 11 o'clock in the morning and I've just waked up. Ned was late coming in, and we talked for a long time last night. He had to go out hours ago, and now that I'm alone and idling I'm going to write down the story, as my husband told it to me, of what lay behind the attack on Mrs. Winthrop.

It's altogether such a strange affair I feel as if I had been reading or seeing a movie thriller. After Ned left Mrs. Winthrop resting comfortably last night, he went to the police station and talked to the young man who had attacked her. For my husband thought that the boy must have been insane.

"He isn't," Ned told me postively. "There's no question of the chair; Mrs. Winthrop won't die. I suppose young Dawson must serve a term, but I hope it'll be a short one.

"He is—or was—a portrait painter. I use the past tense because for two years he's done merely enough hack advertising work to keep alive. I remember his name mentioned about three years ago. At that time he was rather a fad with Mrs. Denford's set. I think she herself had him do a head of her. I know that he made a full length study of Mrs. Winthrop.

According to his story—he spoke with an artist's lack of reticence—she deliberately made love to him. He was fascinated by her beauty from the first, but the attraction was entirely impersonal. In fact, he—well, he was in love with a model at the time.

A Cruel Woman.

MRS WINTHROP would not be content till she had brought him to her feet. And when he did begin to care for her he cared desperately. He asked her to dinner, to lunch, to the theater. He had a small income and a few hundred dollars that he was saving for a long anticipated trip to Paris. He spent the hundreds, then sold outright his small assortment of stocks and bonds. He knew he could not procure for her such jewels as she was accustomed to wear, but he bought quantities of flowers and exquisite objects d'art which, because of his profession, he could bring within reach of his purse.

"For a time his adoration amused her, and she graciously submitted to it. As I told you the other day, she never has lacked male adorers, but after a succession of tired business men Dawson's delicate and wholehearted worship had the charm of novelty. She was at that time recently divorced, and Dawson told me that she had promised to marry him. 'Of course,' he assured me, gravely, 'I couldn't have lived on her money. She said she would relinquish that, would give it all to a home for dependent women.'

"The Poor Fool."

"YOU see how far gone Dawson was," Ned added, with a cynical laugh. "If he hadn't been head over heels in love he couldn't have credited Mrs. Winthrop's willingness to give up her money.

"Apparently he had about three months of heaven, and then came the plunge to the other place. Her portrait was finished and he had presented it to her, waving aside all talk of payment. Then she dropped him as suddenly as she had picked him up.

"When he called one day, she was out. He heard the same thing the next day. Nor could he reach her by telephone. On the third day he was told that she had gone into the country without leaving an address.

"He besieged her with letters and telegrams, sent to her town house so that they might be forwarded. She never replied. She simply stepped out of his life and left him staring at a blank wall. Or, as he put it, 'she swept over me like a flame and only the ashes of me were left.'

"And so, when he saw her last night, talking and laughing to me, he tried to kill her," Ned ended. "It was his first glimpse of her in two years, he had the pistol in his pocket and a wild impulse did the rest. The poor little fool!"

But there was a suspicion of softness in Ned's voice. And I was crying. Yet it's that dreadful woman whom most people will pity!

Horse Cars

HORSE-CARS still are operated in at least two American cities, New York and Middletown, O., according to the Popular Science Monthly. Tiny, low, short and mounted on a single truck, these cars were built to haul about 20 persons. Today they often are crowded with two or three times that number, and the horses are sorely pressed to draw the load.

When the Middletown horse-car line went into bankruptcy several years ago a junk dealer bought it for $400. His profits have been more than 300 per cent a year, and if he were to pull up his tracks and sell them and his equipment, he could realize many times his original investment.

Recently an order has been given by the Public Service Commission of New York that the horse cars must go. The reason for the demise of these municipal curios is that the picturesque equipment of 1800 cannot meet the traffic demands of the 1916 public.

Buenos Aires.

THE last census just published fixes the population of the Argentine republic at 7,885,237. The census of 1895 gave the population as 3,954,911, so that the record shows almost a doubling of the inhabitants in the last 20 years. Buenos Aires is a large and beautiful city with a population of 1,575,814, about half as many as all of Argentina had 20 years ago. The fertile soil, the form of government, the encouragement to industry, the improvement in education, the freedom in religion have attracted a large number of enterprising citizens from all parts of the world.

One Bad Pitch to Schang Costs Brownies a Victory; Mackmen No Longer "Jokes"

Plank's Failure to Feed Athletics' Great Hitter the Right Ball Results in the Blow That Beat Jones—Del Pratt's Homer Wins Second Contest.

By W. J. O'Connor.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Aug. 18.

IDLENESS is a sin, and sin's penalty is death, which overtook the Browns in the first portion of yesterday's doubleheader with the "Awful Athletics. For the Browns had been idle for three days and in that time they grew indolent and irresolute, surfeited with food and sottish from sleep. They died hard in the tenth.

Aroused by the frightfulness of their crime in the first part, the Browns battled for their life in the second game and won it, 3—2, after a struggle, but tumbled, nevertheless, into second division because Detroit took a doubleheader from the Griffmen.

Today the Browns plan to resume the offensive. They have disposed of Mack's two best pitchers and expect to bag the final battle. At least they think they will have more pepper, more speed and more ambition.

"Tell me what you want, I claim that a lay-off is the worst break a winning ball club can encounter," said Fielder Jones in a fanning bee last night. "My only object in booking those exhibition games on Monday and Tuesday was to keep the players in uniform. In 1906 when I had the White Sox and we were winning, we had plenty of double-headers in the latter part of the season and they did us more good than harm.

"Somebody said the old White Sox looked like a lot of cripples, when they walked on the field. They were ridden out, lame and decrepit, but they had the winning spirit and the winning habit. They never had a chance to eat too much or sleep too much. Their brains were sharp and alert. They were nervous and nimble from overwork.

Browns Slow to Awaken.

"We didn't have any fight, in that first game today. We were stiff, awkward and uncertain in our execution of plays. The fact is, we didn't look like our real selves until the fifth inning of the second game. Then we began to play ball and after Pratt's home run gave us the lead I was absolutely certain of victory. You'll remember that only 10 men faced Davenport in the last three rounds. He got going when the rest of the team rounded to."

Some of the players took yesterday's defeat at the hands of Joe Bush to heart. Plank was sick with grief. So was Austin. But Jones consoled them. Said he:

"Don't forget that the Athletics have won half of their last eight games. Don't forget, either, that Wally Schang is in there for the first time in a month and with Bush or Myers pitching it's a pretty tough club to beat. They'll win from the other clubs just as they won from us.

"Anyhow I'll be satisfied if we win 10 of the 17 games on this trip. That means we must bag nine of our next 14. If we do that we'll go home in a position to put up a pennant fight on our own grounds.

"Yes, indeed, you just give me a record of 70-57 when this trip is over and I'll be satisfied, for it will take 90 games to win the pennant and we ought to come pretty close to winning 20 of the 27 games remaining after this trip ends. Keep that in mind and see how far I'm wrong."

This is a very optimistic view to take of the situation and we asked Jones for an explanation, but he wouldn't go further into details. He merely reiterated that 10 victories and seven defeats on this trip would be a record which would satisfy him. And he's the doctor.

Groom and Nabors Are Probable Pitchers for Final Athletics' Game

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 17.

BOB GROOM goes to Hurling Hill today, in the final game against the Mackmen, and he will be opposed by Nabors or Sheehan, more likely the former.

Groom hasn't worked for more than a week and he's aching for an assignment. Jones isn't relying on Koob for any help before next week and he will have Wellman primed for Saturday's game against Washington.

Johnson probably will be Carl's antagonist in that battle. Jones says he will work Davenport every third day from now to the close of the season. He says Dauntless Dave isn't effective unless worked that often, at least.

Another Epidemic of "La Grippe" Is Sapping Strength of Jones' Men

The story of yesterday's fall and rise of the Browns can be epitomized as follows: Plank didn't have his slow ball in the first game and the Browns didn't have any pepper to neutralize the effect of its loss. So they were beaten, 4—3, the same score as they encountered in Cleveland last Sunday, while in the second game Davenport, after an inauspicious start, braced and made the enemy behave while Shotton and Pratt hammered Myers into the mud, 3—2.

The Browns surely are fighting against all the tough breaks in the world on this trip. Consider some of them, which we propose to set down:

No. 1—Tonsilitis is epidemic on the club. Koob, Rumler, Hartley, Marsans, Austin and Miller have it. Rumler was in such shape that he stayed in bed yesterday. Koob is convalescent and eating again. The others are up and about, but they are disagreeably sick; so much so that they can't even smoke.

No. 2—Bobby Roth of Cleveland is now suspended for throwing a pop bottle into the bleachers at St. Louis, Saturday. He would have been suspended Sunday had Umpire Connolly wired his report to Ban Johnson immediately after the game.

Roth played against the Browns at Cleveland and drove home four runs, the last a homer, beating the Browns, 4—3. He hasn't played since and Cleveland has lost a pair of games to the Yanks, who are back in the pennant fight.

No. 3. Wally Schang was injured in a collision with a concrete wall on July 15 and he didn't play a game until yesterday, when he drove in four runs and beat the Browns in the opening battle.

No. 4. With the call 3-2 on Schang in the tenth inning, Davenport split the plate with a fast ball that was low enough to be called either way and Dinneen called it a ball, forcing home the winning run. Schang told the Brown players after the game that he thought it was a strike and started for the bench.

Here's a Freak Play.

A peculiar play developed after Schang had been franked to first in the tenth by Dinneen. Witt, who was on third, ran to the bench instead of touching home plate. Connie Mack sent him back and he went to third, then ran home and deposited the winning run. Dinneen said afterward that Witt had all the time he cared to take to touch the plate. He might have gone to the clubhouse and taken a shower, then come back and finished the game; but he had to do so before another play was made on the field. All of which is important and true.

I rode to Shibe Park yesterday with Jones and Plank and heard Fielder warn the Gettysburg Gunner about pitching to Schang. "Give him a slow ball outside and low, and he'll never get a foul," said Jones. In the third inning Schang faced Plank with a runner on third, and two out. Plank didn't have a slow ball in stock. He tried to fool Schang with a curve and Wallie fouled it a mile. Then Plank tried to pitch a fast one past him and Schang hit out of the park, scoring two runs.

How It All Happened.

The Browns overcame that handicap. Pratt scored from first on Marsans' single that was fumbled by Strunk in the sixth; while Miller was hit in the eighth and scored on Sisler's tremendous triple. It would have been a homer for the Michigan marvel if he were not limping. Severeid's single scored Sisler and the game looked as good as in.

But Walsh opened the eighth with a double and Plank fumbled Strunk's sacrifice. Then Schang hit what should have been another home run, but Shotton stabbed it with one hand near the bleacher fence and converted it into a sacrifice fly. That run deadlocked the game until the tenth, when the Browns blew. Bush opened with a single. Austin booted Witt's bunt. Sisler kicked Walsh's bunt and the bases were filled. Strunk forced Bush at the plate. Davenport relieved Plank and had Schang at the 3—2 stage when Dineen called a low one over dead center a ball and the curtain fell.

If Plank had walked Schang, with two out in the third and a runner on third, he might have won. And if Amos Strunk had not made a Speakerized catch of Lavan's liner back of second in the eighth with two on the Browns would have won, going away. But the Browns had most of the luck—all bad.

Pratt's sacrifice fly scored Shotton, who had singled and moved up on Miller's single in the first frame of the final fracas, while Sisler's sacrifice scored Bert after he had tripled in the third.

In the meantime the Mackmen had touched "Dauntless Dave" for five hits and knotted the score in the fourth, only to have Pratt's home run dissolve the tangle in the sixth. After that neither side came close to scoring.

Frizzell and Hickman to Compete in Missouri A. A. Colors Sunday

Two more athletic stars have been added to Wilbur Hutsell's Missouri Athletic Association squad. One of them is a high jumper and the other a pole vaulter. The high jumper is Frizzell, who during the college season starred with the Kansas Aggies. Hickman, the pole vaulter, hails from Cornell and was rated as a fairly good man in the East.

Both athletes have entered the handicap meet of the Columbian A. C. to be held next Sunday. Without a doubt, Frizzell, owing to his past records will be placed on scratch. Hickman will also start from scratch without a doubt, as pole vaulters of class are scarce in the city, with Floyd of the Cherry Diamond missing.

In the Missouri Valley conference meet in Columbia last summer, Frizzell tied for first place with Pittam of Missouri in the high jump with 5 feet 11 inches. He has done better than this and should give a good account of himself Sunday.

Both of them are at present in the city.

Good Ones in Five-Mile Run.

One of the best events on the schedule in the handicap meet of the Columbian A. C. Sunday afternoon should be the five-mile run, in which Jake Kaysing and Irvin Biel will be starred. It will be the fourth meeting between the pair this season. At present the M. A. A. star holds the edge, having gained two victories in the three starts. Biel is an added starter in the race and probably will be put on scratch with the Tangled C runner.

In the first meeting between the pair this year, the M. A. A. cross country, Biel was an easy winner. Then in the C. A. C. 10-mile he nosed out his rival by about 200 yards. In the Stag A. C. 12-mile, though, Kaysing was returned the victor. So if Kaysing wins Sunday it will put him even up on his rival from the Cherry Diamond.

But there are several others in this race who will have to be figured. John Probst has been given a 100-yard handicap, while Rettig of the M. A. A., a good man over the distance, has been placed on the 250-yard mark.

Several others have taken advantage of the extra week and have entered the meet. Hans Wulff, the M. A. A. veteran, will try in the weights. Oliver of the Olympic Turners, is another who will enter Sunday's events.

The tangle about which club owns Murcheson, the former McKinley High School sprinter, has been settled. Murcheson did not enter for last Sunday, but sent in his blank during the past week, running unattached.

Track Tryouts Saturday.

Tomorrow will be a busy day for the track athletes throughout the country. The far Western tryouts for the national championships in Newark Sept. 8, 9 and 16 will be staged in San Diego, Cal., while a big meet also is scheduled to be held in Pittsburg. New York also will have its share of the events.

In the far West events Frank Sloman, the schoolboy wonder, who is expected to give Ted Meredith and Binga Dismond a hard run for honors in the quarter mile.

Howard Drew, the negro sprinter, who is out to regain his laurels as 100-yard champion, has passed up the far West meet and will start a series of races in Pittsburg instead. Drew wanted to go up against the fastest, so went to the East seeking rivals.

BOEHLING TRADED TO INDIANS BY GRIFFITH

WASHINGTON, Aug. 18.—Manager Griffith of the local American League club today announced he had traded Pitcher Boehling and Outfielder Moeller to the Cleveland club for Outfielder Smith and Infielder Leonard. Cleveland paid $6000 for Leonard last fall and farmed him to the Columbus team of the American Association. He recently was recalled by Cleveland because of the good showing he made at third base for Columbus. Boehling and Moeller leave immediately for New York to join the Cleveland team and Smith and Leonard are expected here in time to get into the local lineup in tomorrow's game.

WRAY'S COLUMN

The Code of Connie Mack.

WHEN the goat-getting champions and the Muggsys and Rough-house Guys of the baseball world have been forgotten, they'll be hearking back to Connie Mack, who solved the problem: How to be a gentleman, though a baseball manager.

Connie is a man of class. He has a standard of play, a standard of deportment and a standard of sportsmanship—all of which he has silently made evident during his long days of leadership in the American League.

One of these ideals caused some grumbling around this city, yesterday, when the line-up he sent against the Browns was announced. For whereas Connie has spent most of the season trying out new material, yesterday he opposed to Jones' pennant hopes the very strongest combination possible—a REAL major league club, in spots.

Fair Field, No Favors.

FANS here argued that he ought to have made it easy for St. Louis to climb, seeing that Jones had so much ground to make up. But Mack saw it differently. He wanted the Browns to have every advantage decently possible, as was shown when he let Fielder Jones decide whether the game of Wednesday should be played or postponed. But it would not have been fair to the other clubs to smooth the path of the Browns at such a time.

So Connie sent the best he had against the Browns, although he has openly expressed the hope that Jones might win the flag.

Mack is a true sportsman—one who believes in special favors to none; and that there are other obligations in the world than merely those of personal preferences.

Outside of This They Were O K.

AS we get it from the story of yesterday's disaster on the Schuylkill river, if it had not been for

Three days of idleness,
One bad pitch to Schang,
Umpire Dinneen,
Errors by Lavan, Austin and Sisler,
An epidemic of grippe,
Lack of pepper,
The return of Schang to the game,
And the Athletics' good playing,

Fielder Jones would have walked away with that first game at Philadelphia.

No Weakling Team.

FIELDER JONES need not worry over the fact that he was "jumping on a cripple," when he opposed the Mackerels, yesterday. The Athletics presented a major league aspect. Seven of the players were good enough for any major league outfit. No club in the United States need feel humiliated at losing to this team.

Johnston May Repeat.

NATIONAL CHAMPION W. M. JOHNSTON, who was erratic in his tennis play last year, and who was considered as having won the title through a combination of unusual form and good luck, is giving the lie to this view by his form during the present season.

Thus far this season he is the only one of the "upper ten" of the tennis world to "come back," if we except George Myers Church. Johnstone has been playing his best game without effort, thus far, reports say.

He has been so much better than his opposition as to enable him to try out his weaknesses at the expense of opponents, without risking defeat.

On the other hand Williams, who was expected to show the best form of his career, this season, is late in rounding to. He has suffered two defeats at the hands of Clarence Griffin, whom he should defeat regularly, and has been hard pressed by much weaker players at other times.

Kumagae, the Jap, who does not appear to be better than a semi-finalist among the big guns, has beaten Griffin this year and last year as well.

Unless Behr and Williams, as well as Niles and Pell, hurry before Aug. 2?, they will lose not only their chance of the championship, but possibly their high ratings nationally.

The mystery of the year is McLoughlin—is he in championship form? That question is asked every day by followers of the game. If he is he should furnish the only real contention for the title.

By-Products of the Late War.

THE European War has made its millionaires; but the late baseball unpleasantness, in which the Federal League figured, is responsible for some of the easiest money ever gained without effort.

Picture to yourself veteran John Ganzel, now a gentleman of leisure, stepping up to the cashier of the Ward Estate and condescending to accept $650 every two weeks for six months! Furthermore, he will continue to accept it for THREE YEARS!

In return for this all John gives is a "Thank you" and a kind-faced smile.

John was rushed into the breach to manage the Brooklyn Feds, when Lee Magee was ditched. Ganzel didn't do much managing, if we except that he MANAGED to get a three-year contract for $7800.

When Ward died and the Federal League dissolved, the estate of the wealthy baker decided to assume Ganzel's contract. And hence John is, now, parading easy street, protected from the cobble stones by non-skid pneumatics.

And yet, Bo, there are guys who insist that there's no such thing as luck!

NO REST FOR THE UMPIRES, JOHNNY EVERS IS IN TOWN

Braves Here for Series, Have Won 9 Out of 11 in Absence of "Spark Plug."

George Stallings, Johnny Evers and other goat-getters are here today to assail the Cardinals in the first of a two-game series at Robinson Field. Johnny Evers, who has been missing from the Braves' lineup for the past two weeks, suffering with neuritis of the arm, joined his mates on the recent visit to several "tank towns" and is scheduled to get into the game today.

Since Aug. 3, when Evers left the team the club has won nine games and lost two, a winning percentage of .818. And three of these victories came over the pace-making Superbas. Fitzpatrick and Egan have been on the job at second during Evers' absence.

Manager Huggins will probably shoot either Leon Ames "Mule" Watson, his young right-hander against the invaders this afternoon. Tyler or Barnes will be on the hill for Stallings.

Half of the proceeds of tomorrow's game will be given to aid the families of the national guards of Missouri now on duty in Texas.

With the Braves and Phillies idle, the Superbas took advantage of the occasion and increased their lead in the N. L. marathon by half a length by beating the Pirates with Mamaux up, 5—1. Pfeffer was on the hill for the pacemakers and allowed six bingles.

SPORT SALAD

BY J. C. Davis

The Passing Show.

THE Browns struck a snag
In their race for the flag,
By splitting with Mack, even-Steven;
We're thankful that Pratt,
With his opportune bat,
Enabled the Browns to break even.

Oh, boys, it was tough!
And the going was rough,
For the Michigan marvel was crippled;
The Browns might have won
Had he made a home run;
But George was so lame that he tripled.

Our boys, just the same,
Played a wonderful game,
But the Mackerels pulled off a rally;
Long Dave lost control
And, when Schang took a stroll,
He permitted a Mackman to tally.

The Browns took a brace
And got back in the race;
They buckled right down to their knittin';
Their fielding is fine,
On the bases they shine—
"Butthehelofitistheyain'thittin'."

The Sox, Red and White,
Had a one-sided fight—
The White triumphed over the Red ones;
Bill Carrigan's crew
Ignominiously blew,
And played like a bevy of dead ones.

The boys from Detroit
Pulled a gallant exploit—
In fact, they kicked over the traces;
For, when they took two
From the Washington crew,
The Tigers and Brownies changed places.

CLINCHING COSTS SCHNEIDER DEARLY IN WHITE BATTLE

Had St. Louisan Been More Daring He Might Not Have Lost Verdict to Easterner.

Harry Sharpe's Decisions

JABEZ WHITE of Albany, N. Y., vs. Leo Schneider of St. Louis, 12 rounds at catch-weights (White 117 pounds, Schneider 117½). White winner on points.

CY YOUNG of Atlanta, Ga., vs. Lou Nauman of St. Louis, 8 rounds at catch-weights (Young 128 pounds, Nauman 130). Young the winner; bout stopped in fifth round when Nauman sustained a gash in right eyelid.

PETE MACKLIN vs. Jack Rainey, 6 rounds at 118 pounds. Macklin the winner on points.

By Harry S. Sharpe,

Referee for the Future City and South Broadway Athletic Clubs.

Clinching and holding by Leo Schneider of St. Louis marred his bout with Jabez White of Albany, N. Y., at the Motordrome last night. What might have happened had he not elected to do this is a mere matter of conjecture. At any rate, the bout went the scheduled 12 rounds and it looked as if Leo's tactics had a lot to do with this result.

It was not White's fault. The Albany boxer was very aggressive and did some good boxing whenever given an opportunity; but it is hard for a boxer to show his cleverness against an opponent who is unwilling to stand off and exchange.

Schneider came into the ring looking nervous and during the bout seemed afraid to take a chance, except at rare intervals. White piled up a large margin of points in his favor in the first six rounds, and it was not until the seventh round that Schneider turned loose some punches and swings that gave him a look-in. Thereafter, at intervals, Schneider engaged in some exchanges at long range and close quarters, and did fairly well. He was White's equal in strength and his blows were just as solid, when he placed them; but he evidenced a disinclination to stay with the pace set by the boy from Albany. Schneider's flashes gave feeble hope to his backers, but worried White very little.

White handled Schneider easier than Harry Kabakoff did two weeks ago, but Schneider fought Kabakoff, whereas he did but little against White.

Schneider Had Scant Notice.

Schneider was substituted for Benny McNeill on 24 hours' notice; but he is said to have asked for the bout and declared that he had been training and was in good condition. He was, too; because he weighed only two more pounds than he did the night he boxed Kabakoff.

There was quite a delay before the boys stepped into the ring, occasioned by Schneider's refusal to box 12 rounds, saying that he had agreed to box only 10. Matt Sofka, matchmaker for the South Broadway Athletic Club, refuted this and declared that Schneider knew the bout was to be for 12 rounds. After considerable discussion the Boxing Commission was appealed to and it ruled that Schneider must take the bout for 12 rounds or suffer a suspension in the local ring for one year.

White gave his weight as 117 pounds, and Schneider 117½.

Lou Nauman, boxing Cy Young in the semi-final of eight rounds, had the misfortune of having his right eyelid split in the fifth round and I stopped the bout to prevent a possible serious injury to the eye. The gash was about half an inch long.

Up to the time the bout was stopped Young was leading on points, but the boys had put up a good exhibition in which some hard punches were exchanged. Young weighed 128 pounds and Nauman 130.

Pete Macklin gave Jack Rainey a first-class lacing in the preliminary of six rounds at 118 pounds. Rainey boxed in very feeble manner, and not nearly so well as he has in many bouts heretofore.

About 800 persons, many of whom were women, viewed the entertainment.

MISS GALLIGAN IS WINNER IN TRYOUT WITH LOCAL STAR

Miss Burnett, 1914 Champion, Loses to Easterner in Three-Mile Race.

PITTSBURG GIRL HERE

Miss Fowler to Swim Over Course Today in Preparation for Sunday's Event.

Galligan preferred reached a stage well up above par in the woman's national long distance swimming market, yesterday. The rise followed a fine three-mile tuning-up swim in the Mississippi by Miss Claire Galligan of New Rochelle, N. Y., woman's national titleholder at 220, 300, 440, and 500 yards, who will compete in the four-mile river championship Sunday.

Miss Galligan came here, Wednesday, with quite a reputation in the shorter distances; but her performance of yesterday impressed those who watched her.

The Easterner and Miss Evelyn Burnett of this city, national fancy diving champion, dove from a motor boat at the foot of Cherokee street and directed their course toward the Carondelet Motor Boat Club, a matter of three miles. Miss Galligan plowed through the first mile in 7m. 15s., unusually good time, and probably the best that has been recorded by a woman in this city.

After this, her trainers advised taking the remainder leisurely. She finished from one and a half to two minutes ahead of Miss Burnett. Inasmuch as Miss Burnett was the winner of the woman's two-mile race in 1914, the performance is significant.

The visitor swam a nice easy stroke during the entire distance, not variating from her long trudgeon-crawl on any occasion. After the swim, she stated that she was very pleased with the water and enjoyed it more than any river swim she remembered.

Miss Galligan was accompanied down the river by Dr. P. D. Heuer in a speed boat. There was also in the craft, Miss Hazel Fowler of Pittsburg, swimming champion, of that city, who will compete in the race, Sunday. Miss Fowler was much impressed with Miss Galligan's exhibition and said that she had never seen a finer developed stroke employed by a feminine natator.

Miss Fowler will swim the course today. She declined yesterday, as she was a bit fatigued following her long journey, which had just been completed in the morning.

Other Entrants Have Tryouts.

Another swimmer of yesterday was Miss Grace Stewart, winner of last year's two-mile contest. Miss Stewart did not accompany Miss Galligan and Miss Burnett, but went over the course with her coach. Misses Frances Bilsbarrow, Ruth Wilderman and Josephine took their turn down the river on Wednesday.

Following the swim yesterday Miss Burnett and Dr. Heuer gave for the edification of the visitors an exhibition of aquaplaning. Misses Galligan and Fowler were enthusiastic over the sport. They had never seen it before.

Misses Evelyn Burnett, Helen Dugdale and Grace Stewart have been appointed by the Western A. A. U. as a committee for the representation of woman's swimming. The W. A. A. U. moguls will confer with this committee on all feminine aquatic events. Miss Burnett is the chairman.

McLoughlin and Dawson Win Way to Challenge Round in U. S. Doubles

LAKE FOREST, Ill., Aug. 18.—Maurice McLoughlin and Ward Dawson defeated George Church and Willie Davis in the final of the national tennis doubles elimination round here yesterday, score 4—6, 7—5, 7—5, 6—3. The victory gives yesterday's winners the right to oppose Johnstone and Griffin, title holders, in the challenge round. McLoughlin was not in best form.

JOSTIES PLAYS TUCKER IN MUNICIPAL TOURNEY

The semifinal matches in both singles and doubles in the municipal tennis tournament will be played tomorrow and Sunday in Forest Park and Fairground; Fred Jasper vs. favored to land the title in the singles, while he and his partner, Drewes, are favored in the doubles. The singles will be played tomorrow and the doubles Sunday. The pairings:

Singles: Robert Metcalfe vs. Theodore Drewes, Forest Park; R. Tucker vs. Fred Josties, at Fairground. Doubles: Schwarz and Walsh vs. Schuessler and Satterfield, at Forest Park; Drewes and Josties vs. Tucker and Hollenshead, at Fairground.

26 GOLFERS STILL IN WESTERN OPEN TOURNEY

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Aug. 18.—Twenty-six golfers, with scores of 150 or better for the first 36 holes of the Western open golf championship, started on the second half of the contest today with 41 others at the Blue Mounds Country Club for the title now held by Tom McNamara of New York. James Barnes of Philadelphia, former title holder, and Harry Turpie of Red Wing, Minn., tied yesterday for temporary first place with 141. The course is in good shape today and the contestants predict that the winner will total close to 280.

BURKE MEETS ROWLANDS AT FUTURE CITY NEXT

Len Rowlands of Milwaukee was introduced from the ring and it was stated that he would box Tommy Burke before the Future City A. C. on Aug. 29. This will be their second meeting here, Burke having outpointed him in eight rounds on Nov. 30. One month later Rowlands boxed Harry Trendall and was again outpointed. Though defeated, Rowlands made a good impression in both these bouts, and is said to be a much improved boxer since then.

Handicap Committee Busy.

The committee to arrange the handicaps for the coming Grand American Handicap trapshooting event to be held here next week will get to work today. The committee is composed of James W. Bell, Roy E. Loring, George K. Mackie, Guy V. Dering and John H. Noel.

Clark Battles Lindsay.

Joe Clark and Jack Lindsay are scheduled to go on in the 12-round feature bout in the negro show at the Future City tonight. The remainder of the card is as follows: Young Congo Kid vs. Kid Yellow and Alligator Kid vs. Battling Johnny.

Amateur Boxers Meet.

SAN DIEGO, Cal., Aug. 18.—Amateur boxers and athletes from many parts of the West were here today for the Panama-California Exposition's national A. A. U. boxing championships, which will be held tonight and tomorrow night, and for the Western A. A. U. track and field meet at the exposition stadium tomorrow afternoon.

Tank Meet Postponed.

The handicap swimming meet for women, scheduled to be held tonight under the auspices of the Keokuk A. C. at Manion's Pool, has been postponed until next week. Most of the entrants are scheduled to start in the four-mile river swim Sunday and did not want to take a chance on the handicap events.

DAILY RECORD OF MARKETS

STOCK MARKET IRREGULAR IN THE FINAL HOUR

Early Quotations Are Higher, but Selling Follows; Bonds Firm.

NEW YORK, Aug. 18.

Firmness characterized the stock market at the opening today, but gains generally were confined to small fractions. Some issues were slightly lower

The Wall Street Summary said: "President Wilson will meet the railroad presidents this afternoon. At a conference between presidents of railroads and managers' committees further indication developed that managers will be backed by their chiefs in the attitude they have adopted toward the President's proposals.

"Trainmen so far have failed to act on the President's plan of the eight-hour day and suggested that a commission weigh all collateral issues.

"Bond issue of $130,000,000 proposed by Govenment to meet expense incurred by Mexican crisis.

"New York railways directorate to meet union officials today, in effort to settle differences growing out of recent strike.

"Reports continue to be received in Rome concerning efforts by Turkey and Bulgaria to make separate peace with allies.

"Standard Oil officials say gasoline will drop to 20c a gallon within 10 days or two weeks.

"A syndicate headed by J. P. Morgan & Co., have under consideration a loan to Chile to aggregate $50,000,000."

"A good deal of obscurity still surrounds certain factors which have long exerted a strong influence on the stock market, notably the matter of foreign selling of our securities. The new British loan agreement provides that $100,000,000 of these issues shall be segregated as collateral. There was even a possibility that American stocks and bonds would not be bought in this market to be placed under the British notes until the arrival of the proportion of Canadian and foreign securities provided for in the plan.

"On the other hand, that plan permits the substitution of one American issue for another, at the option of the British Government, so that there arises considerable uncertainty as to the permanent withdrawal from liquidation of any single block of stocks or bonds.

PROSPECT OF RAIN IS BEAR POINT IN COTTON

NEW YORK, Aug. 18.—Prospects for rain in Texas seemed to offset the influence of a sharp advance in Liverpool and a bullish private crop report in the cotton market this morning. The opening was steady, at an advance of 4 to 7 points, but this was not a full response to the higher cables, and prices turned easier right after the call, with Dec. selling off to 14.45c and Jan. to 14.53c, or about 3 to 4 points net lower.

Reports that the gulf disturbance was headed toward the mouth of the Rio Grande seemed responsible for an early impression that the storm was likely to cause beneficial rains in the Southwest, and there was probably reselling by traders who had bought on the threatening storm news earlier in the week.

Private crop reports placed the condition at 69.8, compared with 75.8 two weeks ago, and the Government report of 72.3, as of July 25.

Offerings increased after the publication of the Western belt forecast for rains in East Texas and unsettled conditions in Oklahoma, with Dec. selling off to 14.36 and Jan. to 14.44, or about 12 to 13 points net lower, but prices then steadied on covering and reports that the gulf storm might be working too far south to bring general rains in the Southwest. Trading was quiet later with the market ruling about 4 points up from the lowest shortly after midday. The closing was steady.

The market worked back to practically last night's closing figures during the early afternoon, with Dec. selling up to 14.47c and Jan. to 14.54c on covering, with Oct. leading the advance on rumors that further shipments were pending from the local stock. General business continued quite heavy and the market was 3 or 4 points off from the best around 2 o'clock under realizing. The closing was irregular.

Expectations that the railways' strike would be averted sent wheat futures up 3 cents on the Merchants' Exchange today, despite Liverpool cables unchanged to 1d lower and more optimistic crop reports from Canada. Broomhall's Liverpool review also was slightly bearish. It said:

The Liverpool cable said: "The wheat market was dull and inclined lower today. More reassuring reports from Canada served to offset light export clearance. Spot market steady and unchanged, with the exception of No. 1 Manitoba, which is 1d lower; cargo market easy, Manitobas 9d and winters is lower. United Kingdom buyers are waiting contradictions of general damage to the Canadian crop, while Continent is pay present prices and therefore absorbing export offers. Corn was dull, but steady."

Corn futures rose over 2c due to continued drouth and high temperatures over the Southwest, and buying by professionals on the theory that $1.50 wheat precludes the possibility of cheap corn this winter.

Cables were unchanged and primary receipts 414,000 bu, against 324,000 bu last year. Shipments were 502,000 bu, against 328,000 bu a year ago. Oats were nearly 1c higher.

The Winnipeg Free Press publishes an estimate of only 11 to 12 bushels per acre and a total crop of 35,934,000 bushels of wheat for Manitoba. It says that this is only about a half crop.

The Modern Miller says:

"Our advices indicate the Canadian crop damage will exceed former estimates in Manitoba and Saskatchewan. In some districts, the crop is destroyed and weather conditions are favorable for rust spread. Kansas farmers wheat marketings are comparatively light after first harvest movement. There is a strong demand from millers for wheat supplies in all surplus sections."

New York wired: "One of the foreign Governments was reported a fair buyer of wheat during the morning and the buying of futures continues, at intervals to midday."

Bradstreet's weekly clearances of wheat were 7,808,000 bu; corn, 1,538,000 bu.

Northwest cars:

	Today.	Last Week	Last Year
Minneapolis	228	137	103
Duluth	56	65	7
Winnipeg	332	435	52
Total	616	637	162

Minneapolis wheat stocks decreased 450,000 bu for the week.

A Kansas City wire said: "A large elevator concern here, with many stations in the corn belt of Kansas, figure that 50,000,000 bu will be liberal estimate of Kansas corn crop. We are again getting back to high temperatures in this section; damage ranges from 50 per cent to total failure."

B. W. Snow's report says: "I have sufficient threshing returns on oats to warrant the statement that the yield per acre is materially lower than was indicated on Aug. 1, with the average weight per bushel markedly below normal. The disappointment is the result of excessive heat experienced, while the crop was in bloom and heading. Returns to date indicate a yield of 30 bushels per acre, against 31.7 indicated on Aug. 1. If later threshing confirms these earlier results, the total crop would be reduced to about 1,185,000,000 bushels, against 1,254,000,000 bushels indicated on Aug. 1 and an actual harvest last year of 1,507,000,000 bushels. The heavy losses in actual threshing yields as compared with the indication when harvested are to date: Ohio, 5 bushels; Indiana, 6 bushels; Illinois, 5 bushels; Missouri, 7 bushels, and North Dakota, 3. With Iowa just equalling expectations and Nebraska showing a gain of 2 bushels."

A Chicago firm wired:

"We have repeatedly called attention to the fact that data for the last Government report on corn was gathered too early to show the full damage. Our own reports continue to emphasize the fact that there was heavy crop loss between the date of the report and the date when rains were received, and it is evident that the crop promise at this time is lower than the figures suggested by the Government on Aug. 1. The losses in Kansas, Oklahoma and parts of Missouri are sensational with further loss in Ohio, Illinois and parts of Indiana. Iowa has failed to fully maintain her promise and portions of Nebraska are showing badly. We believe, therefore, that the next Government report will show a further material loss in corn."

Clearances of wheat were 1,062,000 bu; corn, 96,000 bu; oats, 906,000 bu; flour, 12,000 bbls.; wheat and flour, 1,116,000 bu.

A Minute Movie

HE was blind and the dog was blind, too. But only in one eye. Which made him King. So that suggested to the Miracle Film Co.'s director that man and dog should be worked into a movie play. They were good material.

How could it be done? The director pondered long before the idea came. He would have the heroine in the "Perils of Iphegenia" lost on a mountain top. A storm breaks, clouds of snow whirl about her and she is lost—alone—in the eerie wilderness. But she stumbles on, love of life strong within her heart, saying over and over, "I will not die." Then comes the supreme moment. Just as hope is ebbing and she is almost reconciled to death, her straying steps lead to a hermit's cabin. But her strength is gone. She can only call in a faint voice and fall forward toward the cabin, hand outstretched.

The hermit is within. He hears a cry, a blow on the door. Merely the storm, he thinks. Not so his good dog, nestling there by the master's side. Instinct tells him that someone is without and he goes barking to the door. The old man follows, the door is opened and Iphegenia saved.

But is she saved? The blind man feels a light flutter of her heart. That is all. While the dog mourns plaintively and runs first here, then there, as if to urge his master on, the hermit applies the simple remedies at his command. All fail.

Next come his great resolution. He will go to the town at the foot of the mountain and summon aid. What if it storms and the snow grows deeper every minute? Has he not his faithful dog?

Then the director pictured to himself this old man tottering down a mountain path, led by his dog, while the cameras take account of his faltering steps.

Everything was arranged. The old man, a beggar by hard circumstance, grasped the opportunity to earn what was a fabulous sum to him. There was his dog to see that he did not fall. He patted him and spent a few of his too few pennies that this old friend might have an extra bite.

The day arrived. The cabin was ready, the camera men and the heroine waited. Only the blind man was late. At last a little group appeared on the path below. One of them bore something in his arms. They drew nearer. Tears were streaming from the old man's sightless eyes. The dog had fallen on the steep slope and a sharp rock had put out his remaining eye. Now both were blind. Iphegenia could not be saved that day.

Don't Ever Let Anyone Tell You This as a New One

FIRST LAWYER: You're a fool.

Second Lawyer: You're a blackguard.

Judge: Now, gentlemen, let us take up the disputed points in the case.

The Anticlimax.

THE revival meeting was tense in its interest, and the evangelist was waxing eloquent. He arraigned the laxness of the church people and present-day evils in general, and every one was too absorbed to notice the growing uneasiness of two lads on the front seat. With the question, "What's the matter?" pronounced in tones of thunder, the preacher reached his climax. The two boys had risen and were starting for the door. One of them, hearing the preacher's question, wheeled and said, "Aw, I got the nosebleed."—The Christian Herald.

The Limit.

Not unless they had them tattooed on.

And More, Too.

ARE you still looking for that honest man?" asked the stranger.

"I am," replied Diogenes. "Can you help me find him?"

"No, I can't do that, but I can quote you a very low price on oil for your lantern, provided you buy it in large quantities. You will probably need at least 10 barrels."

Busy Otherwise.

SPRING is the time to study nature," said the philosopher.

"I presume that's one reason why there are few women naturalists," replied the genial observer.

"Er-yes?"

"The average woman spends so much of her time in the spring cleaning house and arguing with her dressmaker that she has few opportunities for gathering first-hand information about the beasts of the field and the birds of the air."

Happy Boys.

"That must be rather confusing."

"It is, but the boys don't mind it. Their mother never dares to whip either of them for fear it might be the wrong one."

Still Waiting.

I HAVE just joined a Current Events Club," remarked Mrs. Grimes. "We aim to take up the most important questions of the day and study each one thoroughly until we find the solution."

"That's good," said her husband. "As soon as you find out who is going to win the pennant let me know, will you?"

A New Version.

I SAW you at the circus, Dobbins."

"Yes, the children"——

"Oh, don't give us the old excuse!"

"The children were all away in the country and I had a chance to take in the show and enjoy myself."

His Alibi.

FACE massage, sir?" asked the barber.

"What for?" inquired the man in the chair.

"Smooth the wrinkles out, sir. Make you look 10 years younger."

"But I don't want to look 10 years younger. I have a hard enough time now getting people to believe that I'm too old to enlist in the army."

Solved.

I WONDER where all the pins go to."

"That's easy. The laundrymen put them in the shirts they send back."

Nothing Doing.

"Maybe it is, but I don't care to invest in any of his bonds."

Not for Her.

I HAVE here," said the gentlemantly agent, "a washing machine which is so simple that a child can operate it. With it you can do your own washing and thus save the money which you now pay a laundress. I am selling this machine at the extremely low price of"——

"Never mind the price," interrupted the commuter's wife. "I wouldn't take the machine as a gift. It's so lonesome out here that I don't see a soul from one week's end to another except the woman who comes every Monday to do my washing, and now you want to deprive me of her society. Go away before I set the dog on you!"

Truthful.

NO," said the real estate promoter to the man who had applied for a job as agent. "I'm afraid you won't do. You're too fat."

"What's that got to do with it?" asked the applicant.

"Everything in the world. When one of my agents tells a man that the house he is trying to sell him is five minutes' walk from the station I want him to be able to prove it in case any dispute should arise later on. I won't stand for any misrepresentation."

It Doesn't Pay.

DO you derive any benefit from all the secret organizations you belong to?"

"Not much. What little money I'm able to borrow from my fellow lodge member is hardly enough to pay my dues."

Good Scheme.

HAD your vacation yet, old man?"

"Not yet. I'm going to take mine the same time the boss takes his. Then he can't see how easily the office can get along without me."

No hustler has time to supply information to a man who knows it all—Boston Transcript.

Made of Rope.

"Put that right back, sonny! You're too young to use tobacco."

"I know it, pa, but Uncle George says those cigars of yours ain't got any tobacco in 'em. He says they're made of rope."

Impudent Boy.

JOHNNY JONES," said the teacher severely. "Is that chewing gum you have in your mouth?"

"Yes, ma'am," admitted Johnny.

"Bring it to me this instant."

"If you'll wait till tomorrow, teacher, I'll bring you a piece that ain't chewed."

Strenuous.

IT'S a hard road that leads to prosperity."

"You bet your life it is. Look at the experience our moving picture stars have to go through to earn their salaries."

Considerate.

OLD man Harkins is always going around bragging that he is a self-made man."

"I call it very thoughtful of him not to try to shift the responsibility over on the Creator."

Up Against It.

I'VE made my bed and on it I must lie,
However uncomfortable it may be.
My wife and all the servants are away
And there's no one home to make the bed but me.

One Advantage.

WHAT do you think of this idea of universal military service?"

"It will be a great thing for posterity. A hundred years from now nobody can put on any airs because his father or his grandfather was a soldier."

They Always Do.

WHAT do you suppose will become of all the big fortunes that have been taken out of Wall street in the last year or so?"

"Eventually they will go right back where they came from."

On Second Thought.

I WAS awake all last night with a toothache, and this morning started for the dentist's, but when I got to his door I turned right around and went home again."

"Tooth stopped aching, eh?"

"No, but I suddenly remembered that I owed the dentist $50 for the last work he did on my teeth."

A Busy Man.

MY office hours," said the physician, "are from 9 to 10 in the morning and from 1 to 2 in the afternoon."

"And the rest of the time I presume you spend in studying to perfect yourself in your profession," remarked his friend.

"Not much, I don't. I need all that time to collect my bills."
